THE UNIVERSITY AT MID-CENTURY

THE new half century began at the University of Arkansas with planning for greater growth in the next few decades. President Lewis Webster Jones was in his third year as head man at the University, and was rapidly making plans for its continued growth.

The transition year 1950 saw the University in its 77th year of operation. From its one-building beginning Arkansas's only University had grown to an investment of $8,000,000. Indications were that the Ozarkian school would grow as much in the next half-century as it had in the last.

Although the main campus of the University remained in Fayetteville, its influence had far exceeded those boundaries. The long arms of the University extended over the state as extension centers were established at Little Rock, Harrison, and El Dorado. These centers were giving opportunity of education to high school teachers and others who could not come to the Fayetteville campus. Extension centers promised to bring education closer to home in the new half-century.

Agricultural extension was doing its share to extend the boundaries of the campus over the state. Already firmly established it was expanding more yearly. Experiment stations throughout Arkansas were doing much to make the farmer realize the University's significance.

While the University was in its transition year, enrollment remained at its peak of nearly 5,000. G. I. enrollment was dropping at the rate of nearly 700 a semester, but a large influx of freshmen kept the total high.

The University population was rapidly shifting. Fresh high school graduates were replacing veterans, and Agriculture and Education students were replacing Engineering and Business students. Total enrollment, however, was little reduced. Blue Key, honorary fraternity, carried on a campaign to keep enrollment high. It publicized the University by sending student speakers over the state, showing a color movie of the campus, and sending out records of school songs.

If enrollment remained high, provision would have to be made for living accommodations. Housing was not forgotten in plans for continued growth. The University agreed to finance construction of Greek houses under a new plan which brought three fraternity houses and a sorority house in one year. The plan, which was likely to attract other Greeks, provided that the University would issue bonds for building the houses, and retire the bonds with the room rent.

The athletic department was revamped to get ready for the new half century. Otis Douglas was signed as head football coach, leaving John Barnhill free to devote all his time to being athletic director. He planned to build up sports in all its phases throughout the state. Presley Askew became head basketball coach in the transition year.

Plans were enacted to build a new field house and add 5,000 seats to the west side of Razorback stadium. The field house would be big enough to seat all the student body and other spectators also. It would have a swimming pool inside. A new coliseum, soon to be built in Little Rock, would help put basketball on a paying basis.

Academic life got its boost for the new half century. A month before 1949 went out, President Jones announced to the state that the University would begin offering work leading toward the Ph.D. degree in September, 1950. Fifty assistantships were offered for graduate study in the coming year. More money from the General Assembly brought in more and better teachers to improve the quality of instruction.

Prospects for an improved Arts and Science college were assured as a million dollar Fine Arts building went up at mid-century. The building was designed to house the departments of art, architecture, music, and dramatics. One section was to house an experimental theater.

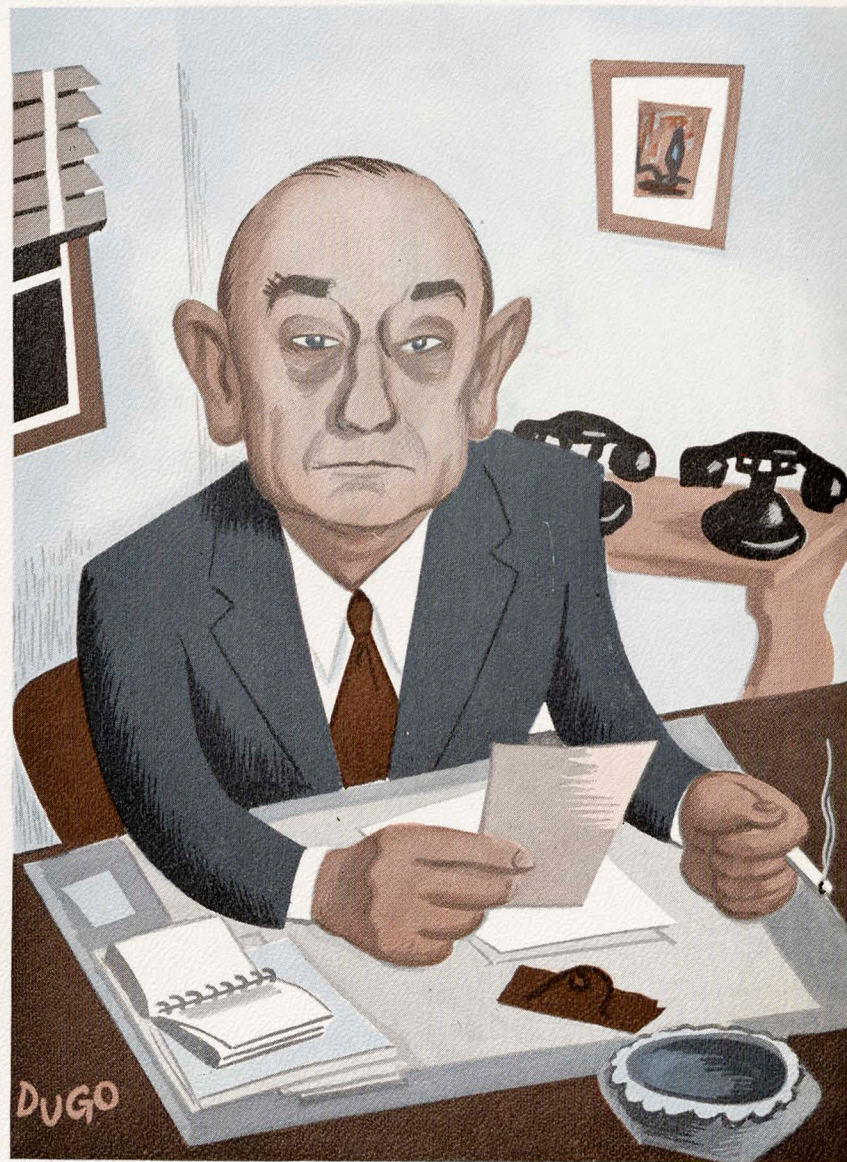

Other buildings were planned for the coming half century. Lawyers were to get a new, modernistic style building in which to house their studies. An auditorium big enough to seat the entire student body was hoped for within the decade. This would bring more important lecturers, bands, and entertainers to the campus.

The Student Union was enlarged in 1950. The new addition was to house the post office and book store, leaving more room for other functions in the older part of the building. The new was developing, but the old was not forgotten.

Historic Old Main got new stairs, an elevator, and decision to retain it indefinitely.

Campus publications started off the new era by purchasing a $60,000 printing plant. It was used to print the Arkansas Traveler and other publications. Next step for the Traveler was to get a news service and begin daily publication.

All signs pointed to a continued, stable growth for the University. A future generation of students celebrating the 100th anniversary in 1971 could look back and call this the year when their University shifted in high gear. It looks now as if the going will be speedy, steady, and sure.

... START WITH THE RUGGED BEAUTY OF A CAMPUS NESTLED IN THE OZARK HILLS

AS the snow and bare lines of winter give way to the fresh greenness of spring, the towers of Old Main look down on a scene that is ever-changing and ever-lovely. Facing across Fayetteville to the hazy Boston Mountains, the campus combines traditional beauty with modern functionalism in a most agreeable manner. And to the students who slip and slide across its icy surface in January, or stroll in its shade in May, it is still what one University board of trustees called it, 76 years ago, "a campus surpassingly beautiful."

FOR early morning classes do come, even to the most careful of schedule planners, and woe to the doubly unfortunate ones who must clamber to the third floor of Old Main to get knowledge. From sorority row and dorms students come, converging and crossing paths in a confusing hustle—engineers with slide rules, lawyers with a preoccupied frown, and chic coeds laden with books. There is usually time, though, for a mid-morning break in the Union, standing in the coffee line and engaging in snatches of non-academic conversation before the ten-till bell heralds a frantic dash to the next class.

Two annual parades introduce the biggest of all campus celebrations. Throngs line the streets of Fayetteville every year to see the beginnings of Homecoming and Gaebale.

The Razorback band is a big part of every school rally. It provides the musical spirit for the people as they celebrate.

THE P PLACE

SITUATED 1,500 feet above the sea, surrounded by Ozark hills, is the University of Arkansas. For thousands of knowledge-seekers every year, this is the place—the place where they live, learn, work, play. It has been the temporary home and office for tens of thousands of students.

Six sororities, fourteen fraternities, six dormitories, and hundreds of privately operated houses furnish homes for nearly 5,000 students. Sprawled over 160 acres in Fayetteville are about 28 buildings, which, directly and indirectly, provide the place for study.

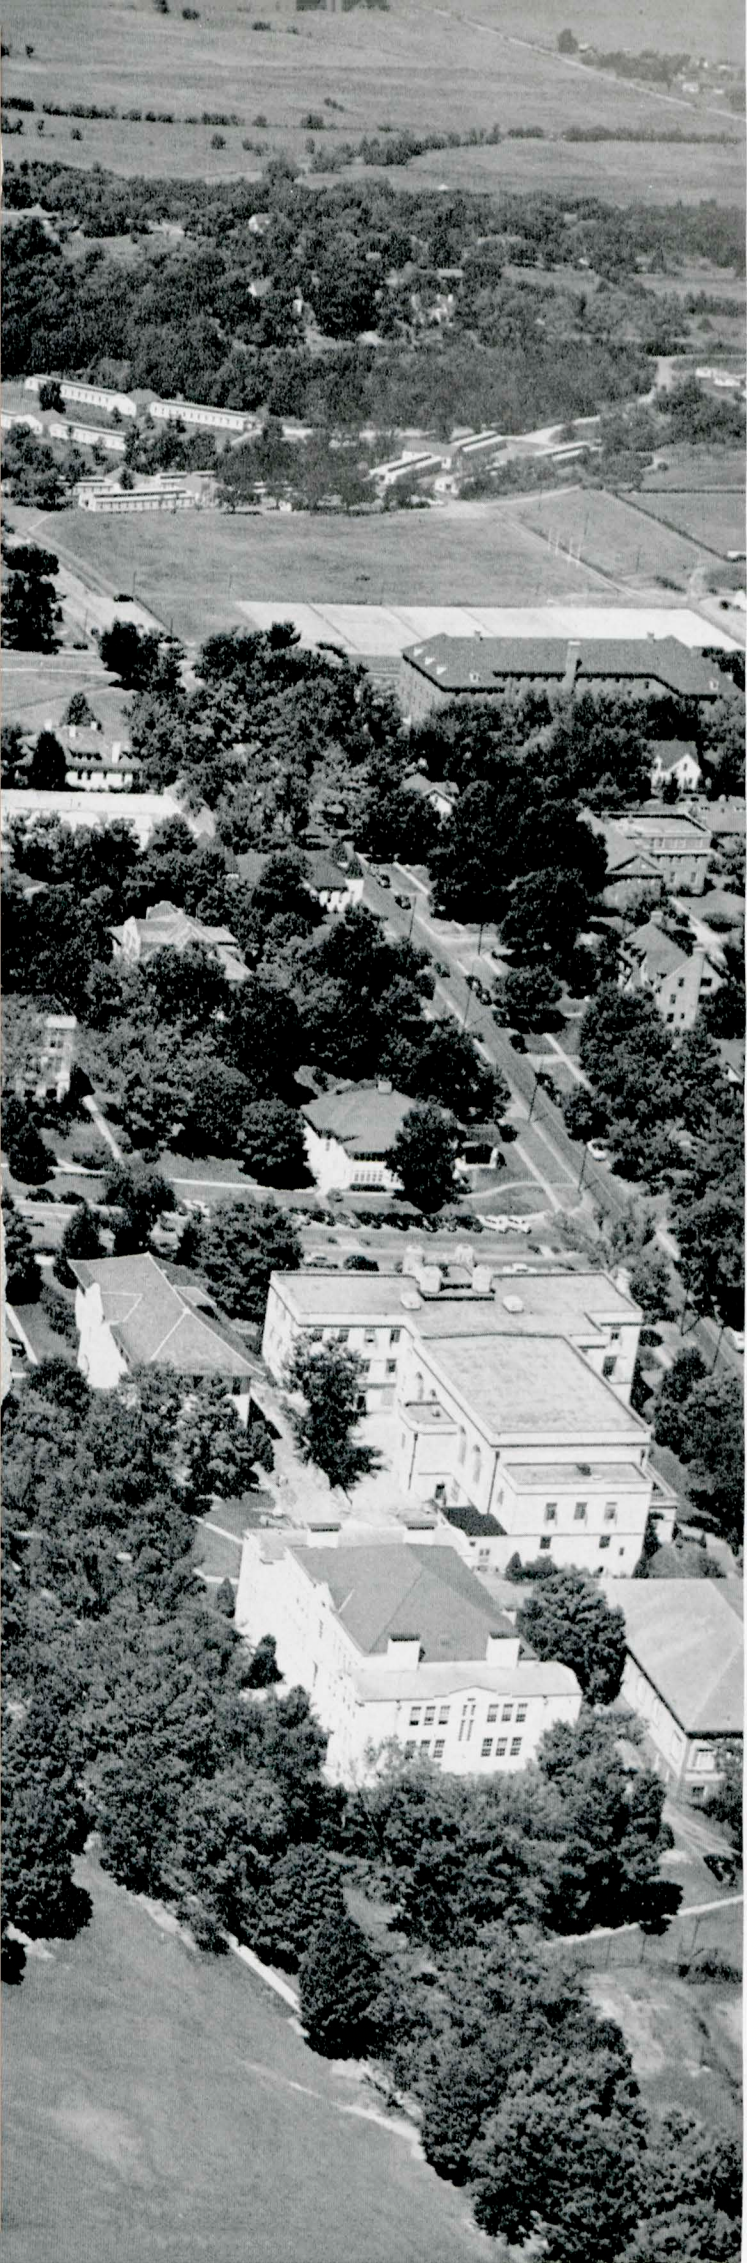

Seventy-seven years ago the people of Fayetteville gave $30,000 toward establishment of the Arkansas Industrial School. Today that school, with a different name, has nearly $8,000,000 invested in this northwest Arkansas city.

Students are not the only persons for whom the University is the place. For sports fans throughout the country it is the place where mighty Southwest Conference teams are born. To industry it is a source of trained personnel. For farmers it is the place of experimenting for better crops. For all Arkansas, it is the place where state growth begins.

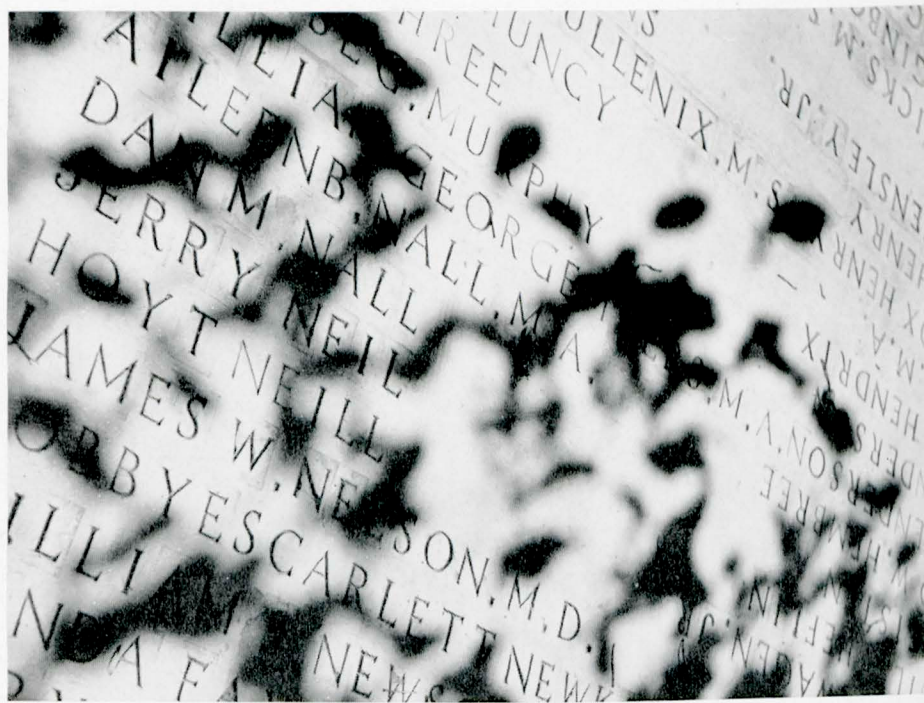

Dormitories, classroom buildings, libraries, student union, Greek houses, stadium, farm, field house, cafeterias—all are part of one big place, a place where learning lives.

THE P EOPLE

THE people are the living part of the campus, never far from its influence, gaining a constant aid in association with one another. Singing carols around the campus Christmas tree, dancing to a name band in the Student Union ballroom, working and playing together, they are united by a common bond that makes their stay in college even more pleasant and profitable. They like and respect each other, and in a group so compact, yet with such diverse interests, each has something to give the other, and each has something to learn from the other. At convocations, faculty teas, and other group gatherings, they also become better acquainted with another group of people who play such an important role in their lives—the faculty and administrative officials. On campus or off, at study or in recreation, friendships grow and understanding broadens as the people work together to make the University of today an even greater center of learning and living tomorrow.

GREETINGS from

I am often asked:

"What makes a university really great—what characteristics give it distinction among other institutions?"

It is readily apparent that many things contribute to the welfare of an institution of higher learning. Adequate financial support, suitable buildings, pleasant and comfortable surroundings, and many other things of similar nature contribute to the growth and development of a university. They are essential material—attributes without which no institution can achieve its potential maturity of thought and action.

It seems to me, however, that the real secret of greatness of a university is to be found in the academic traditions of the institution and in the seriousness of purpose of its faculty and its students—in short, in the place and the people.

These are intangible values, in that they cannot be measured with exactness, but they are very real in that their presence—or lack of presence—is keenly felt on any campus. Also, they are interdependent values, for one cannot exist without the other.

In every institution to which can be applied the term "great", there is to be found a rich tradition—a tradition of scholarship, of striving for excellence, of love of truth, of seriousness of purpose.

In most instances it is a tradition which has been established and safeguarded by generations of men and women who have served on faculty and staff and by generations of earnest students who have sought to follow truth wherever it may lead.

Those of us now on the campus of the University of Arkansas have received a rich heritage from those who have labored here in former years. The noble traditions of the past, which others have established and safeguarded for us, have been put into our keeping that we may profit from them, that we may work and study here and add luster to the greatness of this institution.

And equally important, that we may hand them down without tarnish to the generations of faculty and students who will follow us here.

LEWIS WEBSTER JONES

President Lewis Webster Jones

GOVERNOR SIDNEY MCMATH, an alumnus of the University and Arkansas' young governor, has supported the University in its efforts at expansion. He is now working to help the University get a new fieldhouse. Governor McMath was president of associated students in 1936 and business manager of the 1935 RAZORBACK. He served as lieutenant colonel in the war, and was elected governor in 1948.

UNIVERSITY BOARD of TRUSTEES

Ten men compose the University Board of Trustees, which is the governing body of the institution. Appointed by the governor of the state, the men serve for a period of ten years each. Their terms of office are staggered so that a new member is appointed every year.

Joe Hardin, Grady, was appointed in 1949 to replace Dr. Euclid Smith, Hot Springs, who retired. Dr. Smith's term was to have expired in 1952. Henry S. Yocum, El Dorado, replaced J. W. Dickey, former board member whose term expired in 1949.

Other members of the board and the years of the expiration of their terms are:

Herbert Thomas, Fayetteville, 1955. Mr. Thomas is chairman of the board.

John Clinton Black, Rogers, 1950, chairman of the Personnel Committee.

Fred I. Brown, Little Rock, 1951, chairman of the Research Committee.

P. E. Murphy, Junction City, 1953.

Raymond Orr, Fort Smith, 1954, chairman of the Building Committee.

W. W. Sharp, Brinkley, 1956, chairman of the Agriculture Committee.

W. T. Jones, Madison, 1957.

The board made several forward steps during the school year. Perhaps the most important of these was taking initial action toward construction of a new $6,000,000 Medical Center, to be used in conjunction with the University Medical School in Little Rock.

The board also approved construction of several new houses for students during the year. Four new Greek houses were authorized, with the University issuing bonds to finance construction. The board also agreed to purchase bonds from promoters of a new 4-H house for girls on the campus, to help defray building costs.

BUSINESS OFFICE REGISTRAR'S OFFICE

The Business Office of the University controls all finances of the University at Fayetteville, the School of Medicine and the hospital at Little Rock, the various state agricultural experiment stations, and the Agricultural Extension Service at Little Rock. Since 1923, it has grown into a big business enterprise, handling a four million dollar budget. The staff of the Business Office is headed by Financial Vice-President T. C. Carlson.

The various activities of the Business Office include purchasing, budget control, receipt and disbursement of funds, accounting and financial reports, auditing, and supervision of the many business enterprises involved in operating the University.

The Registrar's office is headed by Mr. Fred L. Kerr, registrar, and Mr. Carter Short, assistant registrar.

Duties of the office include keeping accurate and up-to-date records of students' work, issuing transcripts to other universities, recording grades, and determining a student's eligibility to participate in certain activities.

Special examinations are given by the Registrar's Office for students trying for advanced credit or for higher grades after receiving conditional grades.

The Registrar's Office is responsible for the computation of the student's grade average.

The income of the University is derived from various sources: funds from the federal government, the state legislature, student fees, interest on endowment funds, and various other sources.

COLLEGE OF ARTS & SCIENCES

degree from the University of Iowa, and his M. A. and Ph. D. from the University of Nebraska.

The scholastic honor society for the college is Phi Beta Kappa, established here in 1931. Qualifications for membership are high moral character and outstanding scholarship.

Completion of the Fine Arts building will boost achievement of the college. An experimental theater, with the latest in stage equipment, will furnish a modern laboratory for speech and dramatics majors. Art and architecture students will have modern, well-lighted studios, among the best in the country.

DEAN G. D. NICHOLS

Two new degrees were offered in the College of Arts and Sciences in school year 1949-50. These are the Bachelor of Architecture and the Bachelor of Journalism degrees. Architecture was transferred from the College of Engineering, and journalism students formerly received only the B. A. degree, which is now optional.

In addition to these, the college also offers the B. S., B. A., B. M., and B. S. in Social Welfare degrees. Courses in the college are designed to give a broad, liberal education. The college's concerts, dramatics, and exhibits extend its influence over the entire University.

Area majors were introduced in the college in 1949-50. These are special curricula designed to give the student a broad knowledge of regions of the world. They are offered for Latin-America, the United States, and Western Europe.

Dr. G. D. Nichols is dean of the college. He was appointed to the position in 1947. Before coming to the University in 1927, he taught at the Colorado School of Mines. He got his B. A.

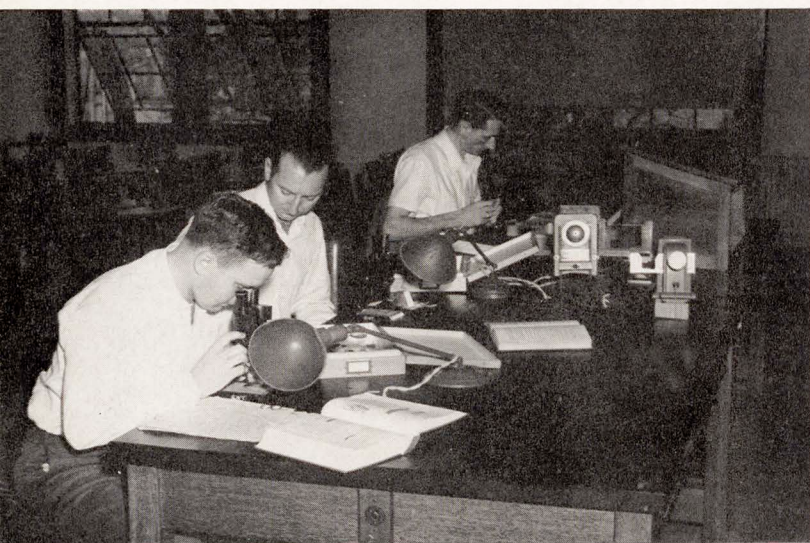

COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

The College of Agriculture offers many opportunities for future farmers and homemakers. It awards a bachelor of science degree in agriculture and in home economics.

The major work in any of the various departments of study is supported by study in other fields of learning, and thus enables the student to secure an education in a professional field and at the same time a general education. In addition to offering thorough classroom and laboratory instruction, the college aids in the development of agriculture and home economics through its experiment stations, its agricultural extension service, and the secondary schools.

DEAN LIPPERT S. ELLIS

Students in the college receive instruction in the fundamental sciences and arts for the technical studies in agriculture and home economics. The college includes the following departments: agricultural chemistry, agricultural engineering, agronomy, animal husbandry, bacteriology, veterinary science, entomology, home economics, horticulture and forestry, plant pathology, and rural economics and sociology.

Dean Lippert S. Ellis is head of the College of Agriculture. He worked as research and teaching assistant in Arkansas Agricultural and Mechanical College. He received his B. S. degree from the University of Wisconsin and his Ph. D. from the same school three years later. Directly before coming to the University of Arkansas as dean of the College of Agriculture, Dean Ellis was regional agricultural analyst for the bureau of agricultural economics in Little Rock.

COLLEGE OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

tinuing its regular program designed to give each student the essential training for a business career.

For administrative purposes, the College of Business Administration includes the department of economics, which, under the general rules of the College of Arts and Sciences, offers a major and a minor in economics leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts. The curricula in business administration therefore provide for a broad cultural education in economics and other liberal subjects as well as for applied business and public administration.

DEAN PAUL W. MILAM

The College of Business Administration was organized as a four-year college in 1937, having operated as a two-year senior division school for eleven years.

The college now offers curricula in general business, accounting, banking and finance, marketing, distributive education, management, public administration, and business teacher training. It awards the Bachelor of Science in Business Administration to students who meet the specific requirements. Advanced study of these curricula is based upon freshman and sophomore work in economics, statistics, and accounting, and other basic foundation courses offered in the various colleges of the University.

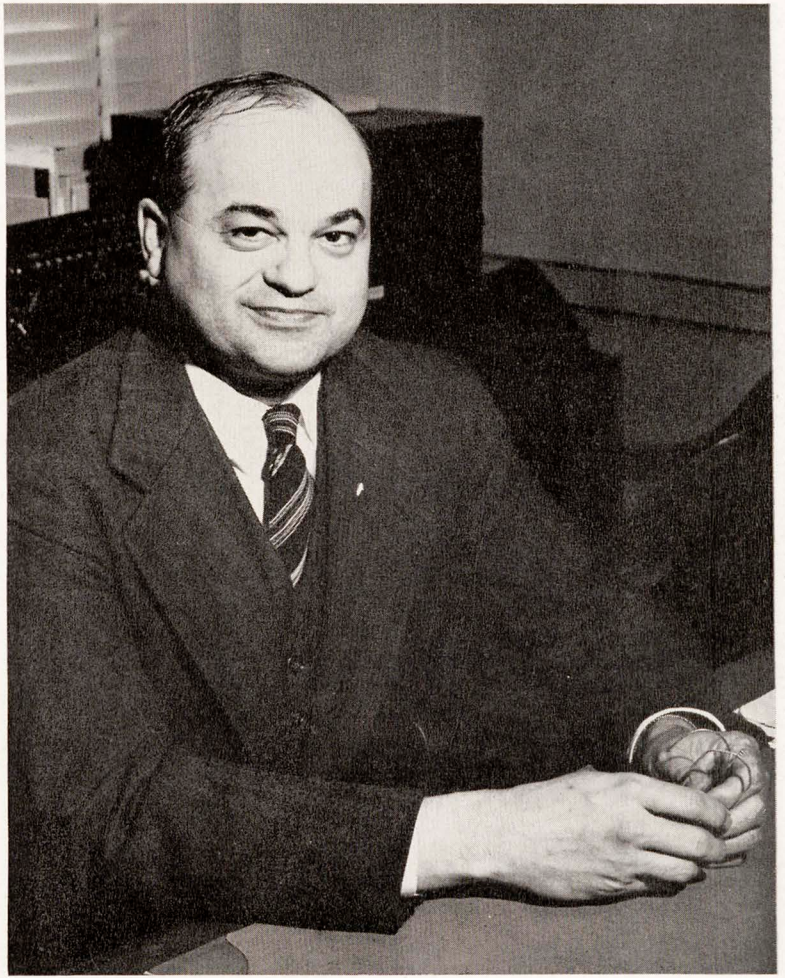

Dean Paul W. Milam is a native of Arkansas. He took his master's degree from the University of Texas and his doctorate from New York University. Dean Milam was responsible for the inauguration of the special two-year curriculum. In addition to this innovation, the college is con-

COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

Made a separate college in 1917, the College of Education is now organized into three main divisions: general education, vocational education, and physical education.

The first of these is concerned with the preparation of teachers for the elementary schools and for the academic high school work. The department of vocational teacher education is concerned with the preparation of teachers in agriculture, commercial education, distributive educational occupations, home economics, and industrial education. The department of physical education serves as a service department for the entire University, providing courses in physical education required of students enrolled in other colleges, and in addition to this, it provides courses designed to prepare students to be teachers of health and physical education and coaches in secondary and elementary schools.

Dean Henry Kronenberg received his doctor's degree from the University of Minnesota. He came to the University of Arkansas in 1935. Dean Kronenberg is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, Phi Delta Kappa, Tau Kappa Alpha, and Phi Delta Theta. He is a member of the Lions Club.

The college provides curricula for elementary school teachers, a two-year course leading to a four-year state certificate.

It also provides curricula for secondary school teachers, on both the junior and the senior high school levels. There is a curriculum in physical education, health, and recreation; and there is a curriculum in public school music.

COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING

more than 16,000 volumes and a seating capacity of 50. The library is a depository for several technical organizations.

Dean George Branigan is head of the college. A native of Nebraska, he received his bachelor's degree from the University of Nebraska, and his master's from Kansas State College. He came here from Iowa State.

Saint Patrick's Day is the time of celebration for engineers. Students select a Saint Pat and Saint Patricia, who are crowned at a convocation. An Engineers ball climaxes the celebration day.

DEAN GEORGE BRANIGAN

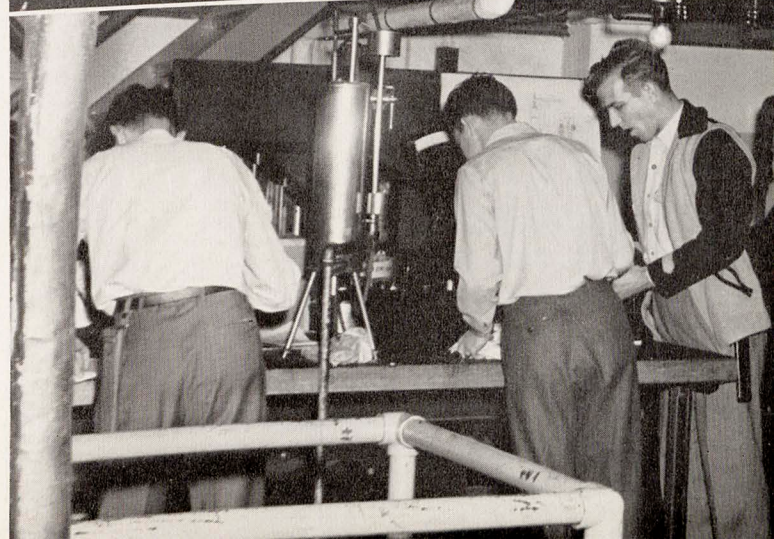

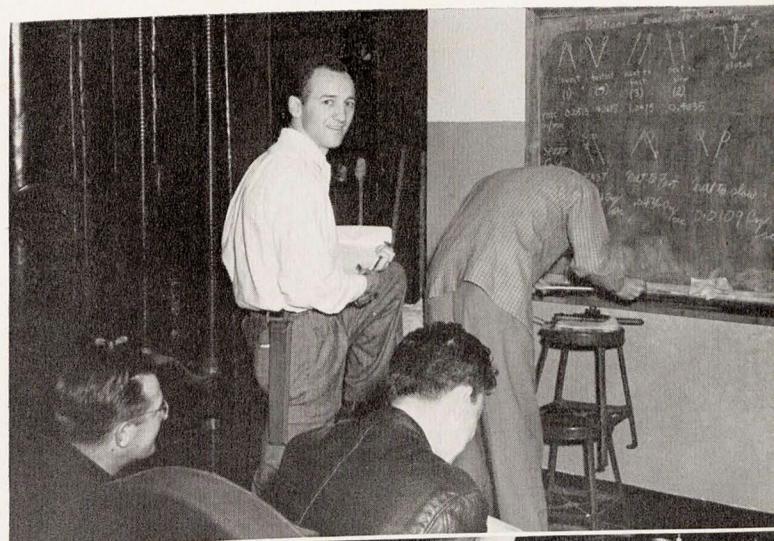

Degrees in agricultural, chemical, civil, electrical, industrial, and mechanical engineering are offered at the University of Arkansas College of Engineering. Students get practical experience in the laboratory plus classroom work. Aeronautical engineering has recently been added to the mechanical curriculum.

The college also offers advanced work leading to the Master of Science degree. Professional degrees are offered in some fields.

Top fraternity of the college is Tau Beta Pi, an honorary group. Theta Tau and Alpha Chi Sigma are professional fraternities within the college. The American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers maintain student branches in the college.

The Arkansas Engineer is a publication of the college, edited by students. Its articles appeal to both professional engineers and students.

The college has an Engineering library with

GRADUATE SCHOOL

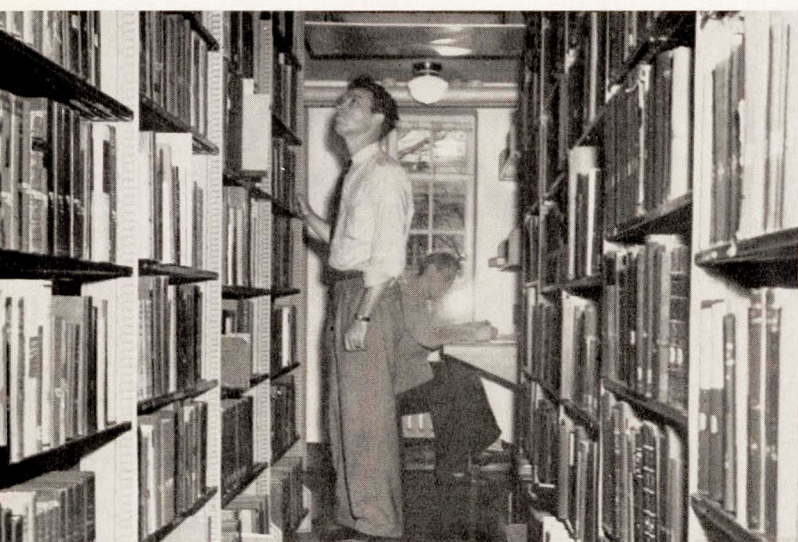

The Graduate School contributes a great deal to the welfare of the state. In its important function of offering opportunities to those who wish to specialize further in their particular field, the Graduate School does much to supply the state with expert and intelligent citizens.

Dr. V. W. Adkisson, appointed Dean of the Graduate School last summer, did his undergraduate work at Drury College and received his Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania, where he taught for four years. He came to the University of Arkansas in 1930.

Dr. Adkisson believes that the University can and must have an increase in graduate facilities. This is in keeping, he reasons, with the constant demand for well-qualified people who can cope with the rising problems of our society.

At present, the University awards the degrees of master of arts and master of science, as well as the professional degrees in engineering. The requirements for the master's degree are: (1) thirty weeks' residence; (2) twenty-four semester hours of credit; (3) a thesis; (4) an oral comprehensive examination. The Graduate School of the University is represented in the Conference of Deans of Southern Graduate Schools and in the Association of Land-Grant Colleges and Universities.

Late this spring Dr. Adkisson announced that beginning with the fall semester of 1950 the Ph.D. degree will be offered in several fields and the Doctor of Education degree in the field of education.

DEAN ROBERT A. LEFLAR

LAW SCHOOL

The Arkansas Law Review is a quarterly publication edited by students in the school. Originated in 1946, the publication is designed to give information to all members of the legal profession, but to Arkansas lawyers in particular.

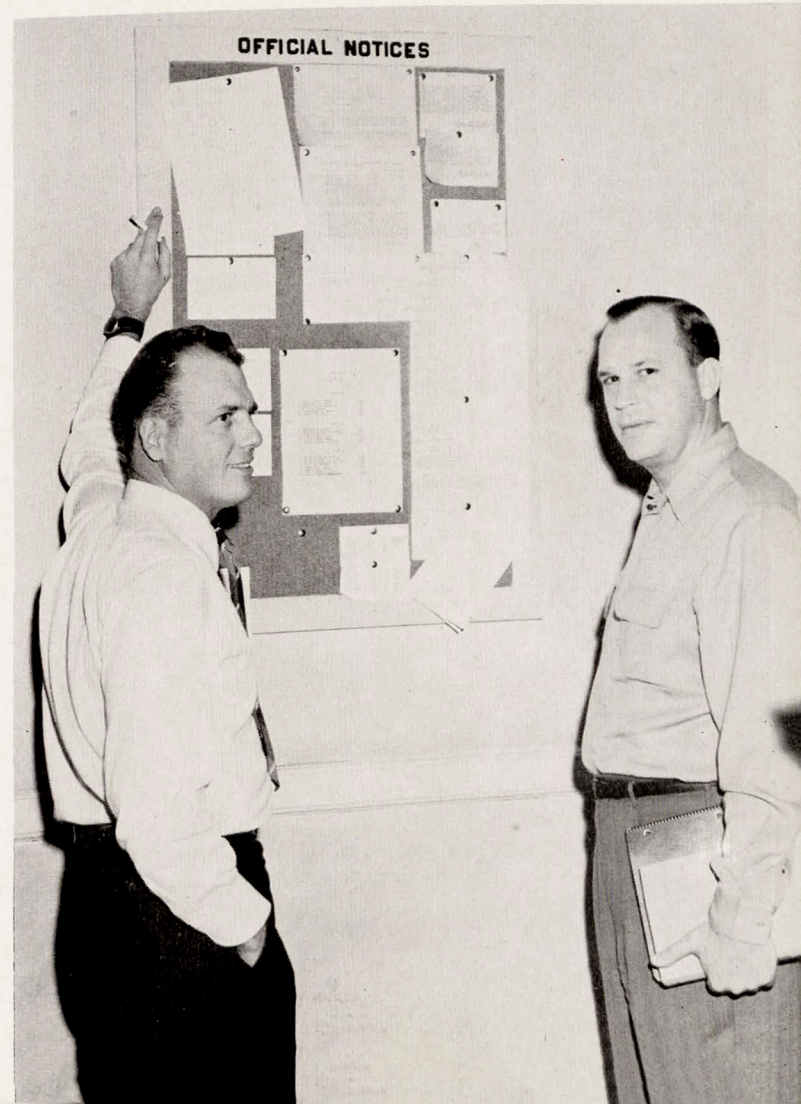

Law day is the main period of celebration for the legal eagles. Held in the spring, its main features include a moot court trial and a dance. Moot courts are also held at other periods of the year.

The school has an honor system for student self government. The Honor Council is in charge of disciplinary matters of the students.

Law School Dean Robert Leflar was absent from his duties as head man in 1949-50 while he sat on the Arkansas Supreme Court. In his absence Ray Trammell, assistant dean, took over the reins of the school. The assistant dean graduated from the University of Arkansas Law School in 1944. He is a native of Russellville.

Dean Leflar received his B. A. degree here in 1922, and then went to Harvard where he got the LL. B. and S. J. D. degrees. A native of Siloam Springs, he joined the law faculty in 1927 and became dean of the school in 1943. He is a member of the Arkansas Bar Association, the American Bar Association, and Phi Beta Kappa.

The School of Law was established here in 1924. Since 1926 it has been a member of the American Bar Association. It is also a member of the Association of American Law Schools, an organization composed of leading law schools of America. The school follows standards of the American Bar Association.

DEAN OF WOMEN

According to Miss Jeannette Scudder, Dean of Women, a University coed, to be a useful campus citizen, should develop social, intellectual, spiritual, and leadership qualities. To help coeds achieve this goal is one of her primary interests.

Dean Scudder is a graduate of Purdue University. As an undergraduate, she majored in English and psychology. She received her master's degree from Columbia University Teacher's College, where she held a Grace H. Dodge fellowship.

The Dean of Women is the official representative of the women students in all matters pertaining to their welfare. As Dean of Women, Miss Scudder is responsible for the general welfare of all women students, for the general counseling of students, and for the administration of women's affairs. Much of her time is spent in individual interviews. Housing, advice to the Association of Women Students, and advice to the various women's organizations are included in her duties as Dean of Women.

Many young women come to the University for training in some particular profession and find that they need aid in social development. Or they come for social development and find that they need encouragement in intellectual pursuits. Or they come for intellectual pursuits and discover that perhaps they can turn these pursuits to some economic purpose. It is the work of the Dean of Women to present wider horizons to students and to open up to them new and broader avenues of interest.

DEAN JOHN SHOEMAKER

DEAN OF MEN

The Dean of Men aids in the smooth operation of fraternities on the campus. It is his duty to check on the grade points of fraternity pledges and to supervise fraternity rushing every semester. He announces fraternity grade point averages for every semester and releases the names of new pledges.

Personal counseling is one of the dean's functions. He willingly gives advice to all men students who come to him for aid. He helps them in their personal and academic problems and gives advice in choosing a course of study.

Men's activities function more smoothly because of the work of the Dean of Men.

John Shoemaker completed his second year as Dean of Men at the University of Arkansas in the school year 1949-50. He assumed his duties in September, 1948.

Dean Shoemaker was assistant director of Ordark Research Project, located on the campus, before he became Dean of Men. He was born in Seattle, Washington, but has spent much of his life in Arkansas. He moved to Little Rock from Seattle. He attended Harvard University, where he received a cum laude degree in chemical engineering and a master of science degree in metallurgical engineering. It was this background that led him to his work with the Ordark Research Project.

When the University got Dean Shoemaker in 1948, it also got a new title for his job. Formerly deans who filled the position he holds were known as deans of students; now they are known by the more widely-used name, Dean of Men. In general, the Dean of Men is responsible for the non-classroom phases of a male student's collegiate life.

Student Senate

The Student Senate is composed of the officers of the Associated Students, representatives from all of the schools and colleges on the campus, and committees appointed by its officers. It is the official governing body of the University students.

Its aim is an honest administration of student affairs and the betterment of student welfare.

Last May, the Independent Party, for the third consecutive year, came into office on a landslide. The 1949-50 Student Senate kept its good record of efficient administration. Their work seemed to fit well into the birth of a new era in the University's program of expansion and progress.

In an effort to improve the textbook situation the Senate appointed a committee to investigate the high cost of new textbooks and the low price received for used text books.

It took the first step to ease the parking problem on the campus when it appointed a committee to investigate the possibility of more parking areas. The buildings and grounds committee came up with a set of five concrete proposals aimed at improving the parking situation on campus.

A judiciary committee was appointed by Senate President Bob Dougherty to work with the Student Court in defining the scope of the court's power and to work up legislation to increase the court's jurisdiction.

The Student Senate entertainment committee, under the leadership of Charles Kittrell, sponsored a Claude Thornhill dance and concert and the Tex Beneke dance.

The entertainment committee broke away from the tradition of bringing only name dance bands to the campus when it sponsored Sigmund Romberg and his concert orchestra. In past years all other concerts have been sponsored by the committee on distinguished lecturers and artists of the faculty.

The Senate passed a resolution that a committee be appointed to investigate the meal refund situation in University housing.

It passed a statute setting up a University chest. The chest was overwhelmingly accepted by the students in a campus-wide poll. Any drives other than the one conducted by the University chest are outlawed by the statute. All money collected by illegal drives will be forfeited, and the money will be placed in the University chest fund.

The Senate also set up a permanent Gaebale board to assist the Gaebale chairman in planning the spring festival. A five-man board was appointed to work with the Gaebale chairman. The board consists of a junior, senior, senate member, and two faculty members. The senior serves as chairman of the board, with the junior member automatically moving up to chairman each successive year.

A statute was passed ordering that all students making a trip on senate funds must check with the publicity office before making any trip in order to get material to promote publicity for the University.

Student Body Officers

The Independent Party made a clean sweep of the annual student elections last Spring.

Aubrey Turner was elected president of the Associated Students. The president is the official representative of the students at all social and public occasions and deals directly with the members of the student body to a greater extent than does any other student official.

Bob Dougherty was elected vice president. The vice president is the presiding officer of the Student Senate and is ex-officio member of all Student Senate committees.

Donna Swank served as secretary of Associated Students this year. The secretary keeps records of Senate meetings, publicizes them, and performs other administrative details of the Senate.

John Thompson served as treasurer during the first half of the school year. When he left school at mid-term, his place was taken by Bobby Simmons. The treasurer supervises the financial affairs of the Associated Students and serves as chairman of all financial committees established by the Student Senate. He must make a monthly financial report to the Senate and sign all Senate appropriations and requisitions.

The following senators were elected last year: Ernest Bennett and Louise Davis, agriculture; Jimmy Griffith, Ralph Ritchie, Winston Baber, and Bob Light, business; Charles M. Kittrell, John H. Marlowe, and Marvin L. Demuth, engineering; Barbara Wood, Dean Yow, Franklin Presson, and Carol Sittler, arts and sciences; Alvin C. Duke, education; and Chris Hogin, graduate. The senior class officers elected were Leland Campbell, president; and Frances Barton, secretary-treasurer.

The Senate consists of various committees formed to look after special student interests. The admissions committee maintains a study of University entrance requirements, and formulates policies concerning the admission of all students.

The artists and concert series committee makes all arrangements for, and administers all matters pertaining to the artists and concerts series sponsored by the University. The buildings and grounds committee recommends order and location of specific buildings with reasons for its recommendation. The discipline committee acts in an advisory capacity to the Student Court when so directed by the chairman of the University Senate.

The distinguished lecture series committee has charge of making all arrangements for the distinguished lecture series. The athletics committee enforces the rules and regulations of the Southwest Athletic Conference. The entertainment committee has charge of bringing all name bands and other feature entertainment to the campus.

The student honors and awards committee works with the Student Council of Honor Societies in providing appropriate recognition for student achievement. The student loan committee has charge of all matters pertaining to the administration of University student loan funds. Other senate committees are: debating committee, convocations, student publications, and student relationships.

William E. De Caulp; Donald E. Farris; Judy Price; Edward B. Dillon; Billy S. Clark.

Student Court

Five students sit in judgment every Monday at 4 p.m. over University people charged with violation of rules. These five students comprise the Student Court. It is a body set up to keep the University functioning as a little community.

Members of the court are appointed as prescribed in the Student Constitution. The chief justice is appointed by the dean of the School of Law. Bill DeCaulp, Fayetteville, served in this capacity for school year 1949-50.

Joe Kemp served as attorney general. Appointment to this position is made by the president of Associated Students. He makes his selection from among three candidates submitted by the dean of the Law School. It is required that the candidates be at least of second year law standing. The attorney general presents cases before the court.

It is required that at least one woman be a member of the court. She is appointed by the Dean of Women, who appointed Judy Price for 1949-50.

Other members of the court were: Ed Dillon, appointed by the president of the University; Harry Erwin, appointed by the president of Associated Students; and Don Farris, appointed by the Dean of Men.

The court has jurisdiction over cases in which students are charged with violating a rule set up by the Student Senate, Board of Trustees, or the University Senate. It may also decide disputes between student organizations and all other disputes, arising under the constitution or under statutes enacted by the Student Senate. The court also has jurisdiction to decide questions affecting student government certified to it by the Student Senate or by the president of the University.

By an act passed by the Student Senate in September, 1949, the court now has authority to fine persons charged with cheating. The fines run from $10 to $25. The court also has authority to put students charged with cheating on disciplinary probation. Fines which the court collects go into the student organizations fund of the Student Senate. This does not include traffic fines, which go into a separate fund.

Convicted parties have the right of appeal before the University discipline committee. Cases involving moral turpitude, at the request of the Dean of Men, go before the discipline committee. The right of appeal to the committee is not meant to restrict the actions of the court, but is set up so that defendants will have every chance for a just trial.

The Student Court is an example of democratic action at the University. It was set up so that students would have the chance to defend themselves in a fair way. Students on trial are allowed to speak in their own defense, obtain counsel to defend them, and summon witnesses. No one is convicted unless his guilt is proved beyond any reasonable doubt. The court is the judiciary branch of the people's government.

Mr. Tommy Wilson, Editor
1950 Razorback
University of Arkansas
Fayetteville, Arkansas

Dear Tom:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the University of Arkansas and all its students for making our engagement there one of the most pleasant ones that we have ever played.

I was certainly honored to be chosen as the Judge in your Beauty Contest and found it to be a most enjoyable privilege. It was sure difficult for me to try to pick the winner as I found all the contestants very lovely.

Listed below are the contestants chosen:

1. Pat Ray
2. Jo Ann Campbell
3. Barbara Larson
4. Alice Jeter

HONORABLE MENTION:

5. Ina Belle Nicholas
6. Sally Cutting

Please extend my personal regards to all the girls. We are looking forward to playing for the "Razorbacks" again in the near future.

With kindest regards, I am

Sincerely,
Tex Beneke

THE P EOPLE IN ACTION

ACTIVITY bustles every day on the University campus. Energetic people find many ways of pursuing their professional and social interests.

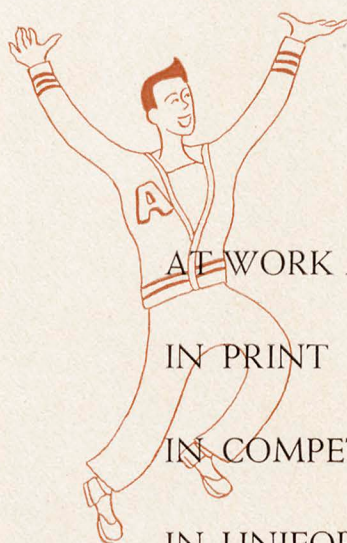

Social activities flourish throughout the school year. Fraternities, sororities, and residence halls have their annual dances. Banquets, stag parties, open houses, and all-campus dances fill the weekends.

Special days of celebration mean more activity for students. Gaebale's gala weekend is highlighted by a parade, dance, varsity show, beauty contest, and the carnival itself made up of side shows by campus organizations. Pre-meds, engineers, agris, business students, and lawyers have their own special "days" of celebration.

Every spring major political campaigns start off another round of hot political activity. Speeches, pamphlets, posters, and rallies flood the campus as candidates seek office. The people govern themselves through the Student Senate and the Student Court.

The people do not depend on the outside world to do their work. They produce their own plays, stage concerts, publish a twice-weekly paper, fine magazines, and the yearbook, and take part in intramural sports.

Students here from all parts of the globe combine their ideas and talents in an effort to make the University a place where students can establish a foundation for their future.

THE 1950 RAZORBACK

The 1950 RAZORBACK encountered many difficulties this year, the major one being the changing of editors in October. Chris Hogan, who had been chosen as editor, resigned because of ill health, and the present editor was then appointed. Chris initiated many of the innovations that appear in this year's book and credit for the first lay-out and organization goes to her.

The theme of this year's RAZORBACK is The Place and The People. We felt that a general theme would be easier to handle and would allow more flexibility in make-up. This year we inaugurated a new policy concerning write-ups of honoraries and organizations. Instead of devoting a page to each organization, as had previously been the custom, two organizations were placed on each page, and the amount of copy devoted to each was greatly reduced. As a result, more space was available for sports and general feature pictures, which we felt would interest a greater proportion of the student body.

We hope that the students will like the caricatures appearing in the opening section of the book. Andrei Dugo, one of the outstanding artists in the country, did the work. He was sent a number of pictures of each subject and did his drawing entirely from these pictures.

Because of the delay encountered in changing editors, the staff picture was somewhat confused during the early Fall. But we were aided greatly by the experience and generous help of Madge Westbrook, Janie Sullivan, Pat Pierce, and Richard Ward. A group of newcomers to the game, including Perrin Jones, Gene Sheets, Janet Diekman, Jane Hall, Grace Godat, and Terry Guinn, helped to make the job much easier for the editor. As usual, Professor Joseph Thalheimer, faculty advisor, was the indispensable man in this production.

Maitland Rutledge and his small but efficient business staff has done a wonderful job on the advertising and helped the editorial department on many occasions. Feature pictures have been interspersed frequently throughout the advertising section to help brighten it up.

Our thanks also go to Mr. R. C. Walker, the engraver; Mr. R. J. Collins, the printer; and Mr. Harold Beckett, representative for the cover manufacturer.

THE ARKANSAS TRAVELER

Moving to a new home was the big event for the Arkansas Traveler in 1949. Formerly the paper was composed in an office in the Student Union building and was printed in uptown Fayetteville; now the offices and printing plant are both located in the same building, Hill Hall.

Several changes in Traveler methods were instigated under the guidance of John Troutt, editor for 1949-50. All minor news items (club announcements, initiations, etc.) were printed under one heading, called "On the Campus." Sport news, except major events which made the front page, occupied the back page. Letters were run under the heading "Letters To the Editor." All letters received were published except those which bore no name.

In the first semester four columns were continued from the year before. They were: The Pig Pen, by Vic Holthoff; From the Hogs' Trough, by Deane Hardy; Travelin', a society column; and Sparks From the Grindstone, by Robert S. McCord.

Several new columns were begun during the year. The Pig Pen was discontinued at mid year because its writer was graduated from school. Charles Rixse, who succeeded Holthoff, instigated a new column, Sportalk. Other columns run during the year were: The Managing Editor Speaks, written by the two managing editors on alternate weeks; Nosin' Around, by "Waljo" (Bill Waller and Jimmy Jones); and Razorback Ramblin's, by Jimmy Jones.

The staff underwent a few changes at mid year. Robert McCord was promoted to associate editor and Jerry O'Roark took over as news editor. Richard Ward became managing editor, replacing Jimmy Jones, who resigned to do column work.

The business department, headed by Andy Tarvin, took care of circulation, advertising, and financial matters. Both local and national advertising were carried by the Traveler.

The Traveler continued to use modern make-up methods, which the paper first used in 1948. Pictures were used frequently to brighten up the pages. A cartoon, editorials, and columns were features of the editorial page every Friday. A calendar of events for succeeding days was published in each issue. The paper carried four pages on Tuesdays and eight on Fridays.

Every source of campus news was tapped by the Traveler. Football provided big news for the fall semester. Gaebale and the college "days" were featured in many spring semester editions. Student Senate sessions, Student Court, and other important meetings were covered. Engagements, concerts, dances, politics, sports, administrative news, and student activities were a part of every issue.

THE GUILD TICKER

The Guild Ticker is the business magazine published once each semester by students at the University of Arkansas who are in the Business School. The magazine is planned for the consumption of business students at the University and of businessmen throughout the state, with the purpose of furnishing information to its readers about the newest and largest industries over the state.

With a brand new office in reconverted Hill Hall and a brand new, enthusiastic staff, Editor Ferd Billingrath and Business Manager Gene Rapley began work on the 1949-50 Guild Ticker.

Bill Bodenhamer's drawing, which depicted industry in Arkansas, appeared on the cover of the Fall issue. Articles on the rice industry in Arkansas and on the opportunities of our state for advancement and improvement were features of this edition. Also featured in the Fall Ticker was a summary of the talk on progress in Arkansas which was given by C. Hamilton Moses, President of Arkansas Power and Light Company and President of the Arkansas Economic Council. The address was given at a Fayetteville meeting of business, professional, and agricultural leaders of the state. Articles by Dean Milam and the Presidents of the Commerce Guild Executive, Alpha Kappa Psi, and Chi Theta were included in this issue. Also featured was a special page of pictures of outstanding business students elected by each organized house on the campus.

Paralleling this feature, in the Spring edition there was a group of pictures depicting the typical day in business school. This issue also carried outstanding articles on economic problems of current interest to the students. These included articles on the Du Pont suit, the controversy over ownership of farm surpluses, oil well supplies within the state, and current problems of international trade.

Bill Pryor, who served as executive editor, and Bill Murphy, who was the managing editor, did their share of the work and much more. These two men worked with the editor for many long and late hours trying to meet the two deadlines. In addition, Bill Pryor contributed his wit to the magazine when he suggested a number of ideas for cartoons.

The financing of this year's Guild Ticker was ably handled by Gene Rapley, the Business Manager, and his competent staff. The Circulation Manager, Adrian Williamson, was in charge of distributing copies of the two editions to a mailing list comprised of approximately twelve hundred businesses, high schools, and past editors of the Ticker throughout the state.

THE AGRICULTURIST

The Agriculturist has served as the official mouthpiece for the students and faculty of the College of Agriculture since 1924. The magazine is published each month by the students in the College of Agriculture, and contains articles and features material of interest and guidance to Agriculture and Home Economics students. News about campus organizations, editorials, technical reports on recent scientific developments in agriculture, and bits of contemporary gossip are topics of particular interest which are regularly included. A lively and expressive pride in the College is apparent in all of the writing of the staff. The Agriculturist assumes the role of the voice of the students, and any gripes, comments, or opinions are expressed in it.

One of the most popular and most thoroughly read pages in the Agriculturist is "Grunts and Squeals," the joke page where all the chuckles currently circulating around the Agri College are concentrated.

The Dean's page is another regular feature which was run in the magazine this year. In each issue there appeared on this page a message to the students written by Dean Lippert S. Ellis. This section has become an important link between the students and the Dean.

Another feature of the magazine this year has been a series of outstanding students in the College of Agriculture. These students were chosen by the editors and the staff of the publication, and the selection was based on scholastic and service records.

"Betty Lamp" is the section of the Agriculturist which is devoted to the students in the School of Home Economics. This section contains news about the department, short items of interest for Home Ec students, and news about the Home Ec Club. Also included in this section each month was a feature of some outstanding girl in the College. The honoree was chosen by the staff.

The traditional pink-cover issue of the Agriculturist, published in April, was the biggest and most important issue of the year, and highlighted the thirty-fifth anniversary of Agri Day. This issue was devoted to pages about organizations in the college and to Agri Day activities. It also featured the Agri Queen and those chosen for Who's Who in the College, which is based on scholastic and leadership records.

The Agriculturist is financed by both national and local ads plus a proportion of ADA dues. It is sponsored by the Agri Students Association, and the editor and business manager are selected each year prior to Agri Day.

THE ENGINEER

The general belief that engineers are non-literary creatures is disproved by the staff of The Arkansas Engineer. Four copies each year are produced by and for the engineering students at the University of Arkansas, covering the pertinent engineering developments in industry and on the campus. The magazine contains articles of interest not only to students of the College but to practicing engineers over the State. For the past thirty years there have always been a few ink-stained engineers who have undertaken the publication of this magazine. And those years have seen an Engineering magazine evolve which is truly a credit to the University of Arkansas and particularly to the College of Engineering.

A wide variety of experience and opportunity is available to the ambitious underclassman who begins work on The Arkansas Engineer. Gross commercialists belong on the business staff, which is directly concerned with circulation, advertising, publicity, and the general managing of finances. Those with creative ability may contribute their talents to the editorial staff.

The red ink was brought into sharp focus this year, due to an excess of "accounts payable" which have accumulated over the past two years of publication. The staff took this handicap in its stride and cut costs at every turn, while still publishing one of the higher quality engineering college magazines in the Engineering College Magazines Associated. Even with these difficulties the members of both the business and the editorial staff are to be commended for a job well done.

Some interesting articles which have been featured in the magazine this year are "Cybernetics," by Cameron Allen; "Our Underwater Oil Reserve," by Jack Griffin; "Arkansas' Working Waters," by Bruce H. Estes; and an article about synthetic rubber by Bill Seaton. One of the few "female" engineers contributed a very complete report on Prestressed Concrete.

"Cracked Retorts," which is the joke page, and "Hawg Waller," which gives the "low-down" on the higher-ups, are two of the most popular and most universally read of the features regularly included in the magazine.

On Saint Patrick's Day, which is the Engineer's Day on the campus, The Arkansas Engineer issues a special edition. In it are announced St. Pat and his Queen, their Guards of Honor and Maids in Attendance. Also included in this issue is a complete history of Engineer's Day on the University of Arkansas campus.

THE LAW REVIEW

Four years from its foundation in the spring of 1946, the Arkansas Law Review has attained the rank of "the outstanding scholarly publication in the state," with a circulation upwards of 1,400 copies throughout Arkansas and other states.

The first issue was published for Arkansas lawyers in January of 1947. In the summer of that year, a group of prominent attorneys, representing the Arkansas Bar Association, formed a corporation to publish the Review. With the summer issue of 1947, the format of the publication was changed to Arkansas Law Review and Bar Association Journal, and since then it has become a joint enterprise of the Bar Association and the faculty and students of the Law School. The Review is distributed to University of Arkansas law students, members of the Arkansas Bar Association, and to a large number of other law schools throughout the country.

Patterned after the publications of older law schools, the Review consists of critical and analytical legal writing on topics of interest to the Arkansas bench and bar. Full length articles written by faculty members, outstanding lawyers, and authorities of other states constitute the bulk of the publication. Contributions of the student staff include comments on legal problems of current interest and brief case notes on recent significant decisions by the courts throughout the country.

The Law Review has been cited as authority on decisions of the Arkansas Supreme Court as well as the courts of other jurisdictions. Also, the newly published Arkansas Statutes Annotated makes numerous references to Law Review articles as authority for various points of law.

A large office complete with library is provided in the basement of the Law Building. Here the members of the staff read and screen the decisions of higher courts, write and revise the short articles which form an important part of the Law Review.

Each year the staff is selected from those in the student body of the Law School who have a grade point of over 4.0. In addition to this requirement, at least two publishable articles are necessary for a student's name to be carried on the masthead.

Law Review work is considered invaluable training for a law student inasmuch as it affords an opportunity to do original research on legal problems such as the practicing attorney must do. Articles written for publication are considered and criticized by the Student Board, thus also providing experience for the Board members. The writers profit by having defects in their work pointed out.

BOARD of PUBLICATIONS

JOHN TROUTT, Chairman

This year, John Troutt, the editor of the Arkansas Traveler, served as the Chairman of the Board of Publications, and Bill Waller, president of the Press Club, served as the secretary. The other members composing the Board this year were Professor Joseph Thalheimer, member of the Journalism faculty; Mr. Bunn Bell, member of the business office staff; Professor Charles Oxford, member of the Engineering School faculty; Tommy Wilson, editor of the RAZORBACK; Ferd Bellingrath, editor of the Guild Ticker; Arch McMahan, editor of the Agriculturist; and Dennis York, selected by the president of Associated Students.

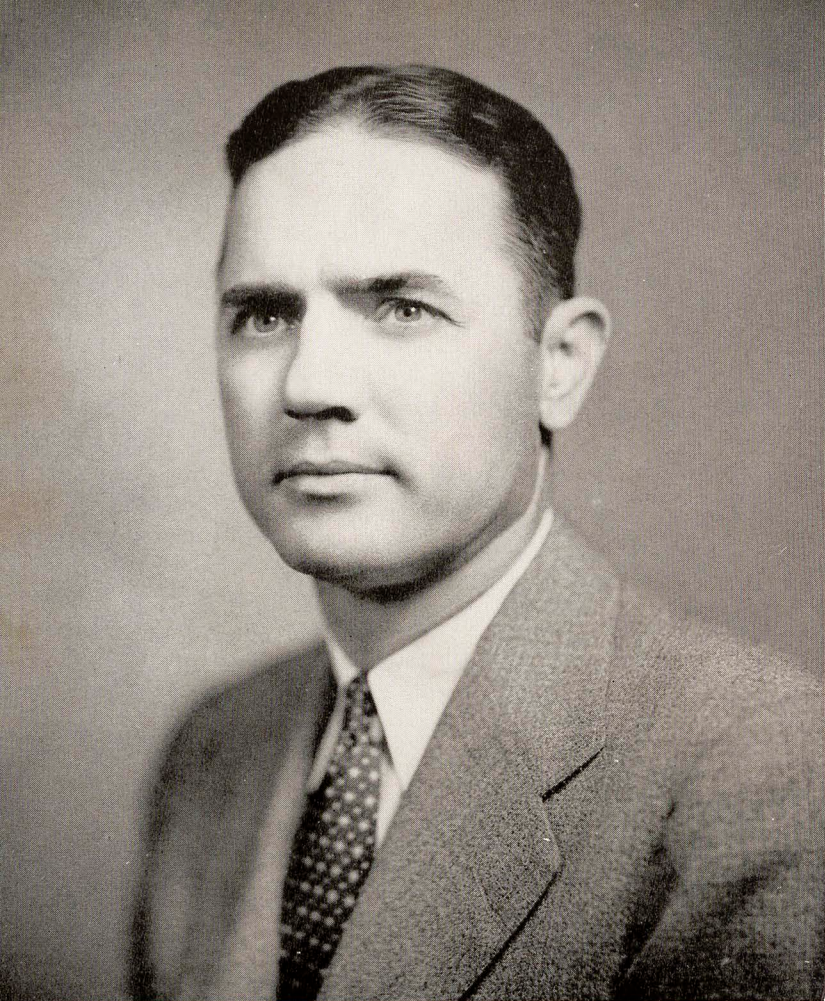

The regular duty of the Board of Publications is to choose the editors and business managers of the Traveler, the RAZORBACK, and the "A" Book. In addition, the Board lets the contracts for the printing and engraving of the student publications and for the pictures to be used in them.

Through the efforts and influence of the Board, the University press was secured for the purpose of instructing Journalism students and of printing the many student publications. This press has been a great asset to Hill Hall.

In Competition

THE COACHING STAFF

JOHN BARNHILL, Director of Athletics

This year saw the first major changes in the University of Arkansas athletic department since 1946 when John Barnhill and his staff moved in from Tennessee to introduce the rock-ribbed defense and Tennessee single-wing that have made his teams famous. Barnhill was moved up to a full-time job as director of athletics and Otis Douglas, former assistant coach of the professional Philadelphia Eagles, was given the head coaching job. Douglas proceeded to install assistants who are familiar with the new type of football to be employed at Arkansas.

William Ferrell, former assistant at William & Mary and Drexel Institute, where Douglas formerly coached, was the first coach named by the new regime. Ferrell also serves as head baseball mentor during the spring.

Charles Hanks was selected as the new line coach. A former grid star at Pennsylvania State Teachers, Shippensburg, Hanks met Douglas during his stay at Drexel.

Dick Humbert, new end coach, played college football for the University of Richmond four years and immediately moved up to the Philadelphia Eagles, where he played end until coming to Arkansas with Douglas. George Cole, Clyde Van Sickle, and Charles Gray were members of the Barnhill staff that remained to help Douglas in his new job.

Spring football practice at Arkansas resembled a small-scale Philadelphia Eagle camp. Several Eagle greats were on hand to tutor the Razorbacks in the new types of offense and defense to be used during the 1950 season. Among those present for the drills were Neil Armstrong, former All-American end with Oklahoma A&M; Tommy Thompson, outstanding T quarterback with the Eagles; Cliff Patton, place-kicking specialist for the pro champs; and former Arkansas All-American Clyde Scott, who helped teach the halfbacks the finer points of ball-carrying. The squad thrived under the direction of these men and spring practice games point to bigger and better things in Arkansas football next season.

The 1949 season produced a record of 5 wins and 5 losses, with four of the defeats being inflicted by Southwest Conference teams. The Porkers started off the season in War Memorial Stadium in Little Rock by out-running the North Texas Eagles in a crowd-pleasing 33-19 win. Moving up to Fayetteville for the conference opener, the Hogs smashed TCU and their ace passer, Lindy Berry, to wrap up a 27-7 win in a rough and tumble clash before 16,000 fans. Then disaster struck at Waco, as usual, and the Baylor Bears romped to a 35-13 win, via Adrian Burk passes and a strong ground attack. In Little Rock the next week, Razorback fans saw a 14-0 Arkansas lead at half time evaporate in a flurry of Paul Campbell passes and Texas had annexed a 27-14 win. A 7-6 win over Vanderbilt at Nashville portrayed the old Barnhill defense and the next Saturday, a smashing ground game helped the Porks hand the Texas Aggies a 27-6 Homecoming defeat at Fayetteville.

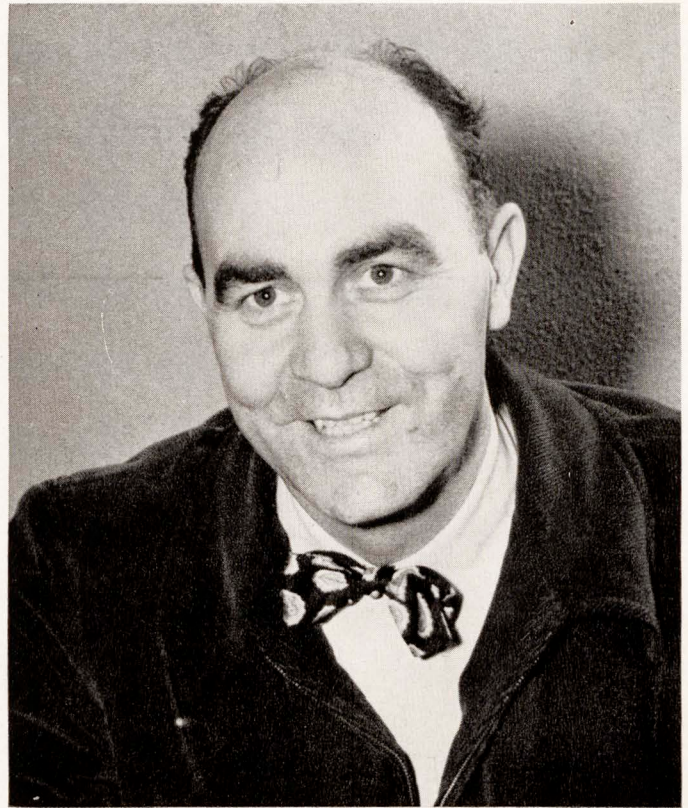

In Houston, Rice finally emerged with a 14-0 win and then the roof fell in at Dallas. All-American Doak Walker was just that as he led the SMU Mustangs to a 34-6 victory. William & Mary disappointed a Little Rock crowd of 16,000 by handing the Razorbacks a 20-0 defeat but the Hogs enjoyed a field day in their season finale in Fayetteville. Tulsa University was ground into the turf, 40-7, as Barnhill went out in a blaze of glory, ending a 4-year tour of duty as Arkansas' head football coach.

North Texas State Eagles in the season's opener at Little Rock's War Memorial Stadium.

The first half was not exciting from an offensive standpoint. Arkansas managed a 6-0 lead on Don Logue's 24 yard run just before the whistle. They built it to 12-0 two minutes into the third quarter on Campbell's fine 56 yard run through the entire Eagle eleven.

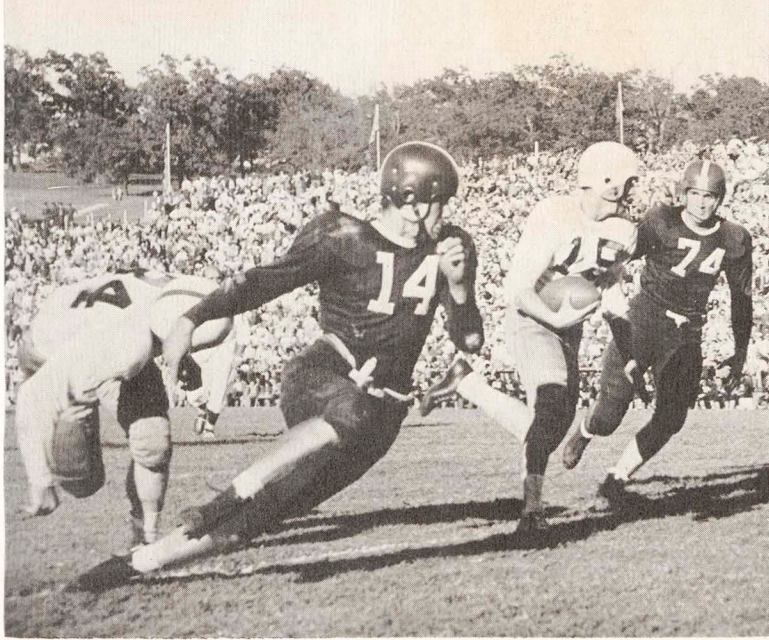

Then Cecil Martin began to throw for the Texans, and in a flash the Denton eleven had moved ahead 13-12.

Arkansas' number one attack unit came back in and Ray Parks and Campbell spearheaded a drive to the Eagle 30. From there Charlie Temple hit Pat Summerall with a pass on the three. Logue sneaked over from there two plays later and Arkansas again led 19-13.

The Eagles came right back to score on a long end zone pass from Cecil Martin to A. D. Cate.

Then Furo and Campbell struck. Furo first, on a twisting 35 yard scamper through the arms of the Eagles. Campbell iced it on a great 76 yard gallop with a Logue pitchout.

North Texas compiled 19 first downs to Arkansas' 10, but the Hogs' win was a convincing one, and they soundly outplayed the Eagles. John Ferguson, Theron Roberts, Louie Schaufele, John Lunney, Billy Hix, Frank Fischel and Pat Summerall turned in fine games on defense.

them there the remainder of the game as the Hogs rolled to an impressive 27-7 win in their conference opener.

Some 16,000 persons sat under cloudless skies in Razorback Stadium to watch the Porkers engineer the upset. Here's how it happened.

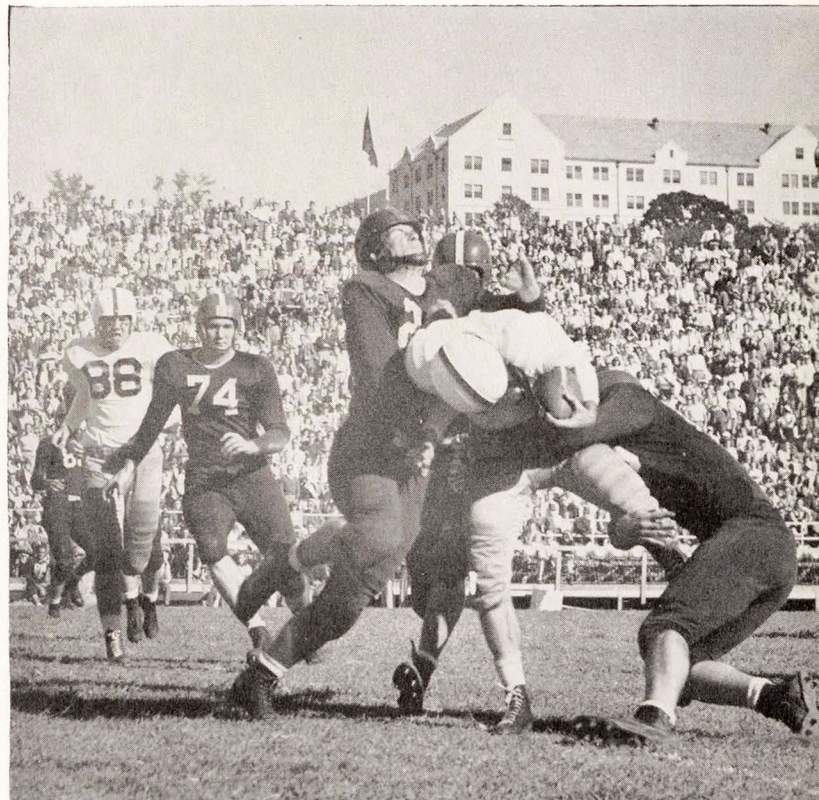

Don Logue, a questionable starter, who played a whale of a game, fired two first period TD passes, one to Billy Hix, the other to Pat Summerall, to shoot Arkansas into a 13-0 lead.

TCU caught hold in the second period, with John Morton, a fine soph fullback, spearheading an 80 yard ground drive good for a score. Ludiker's conversion made it 13-7 at halftime.

After intermission the Froggies played dead and Logue scampered for two markers in the final period to make it a rout.

Arkansas' defense was terrific. Their job was to stop the heralded Lindy Berry and they did that in a most convincing manner. Berry tried 24 passes, completing only 7, far below his great average of .651. Hog defenders intercepted 4 of his wild aerials.

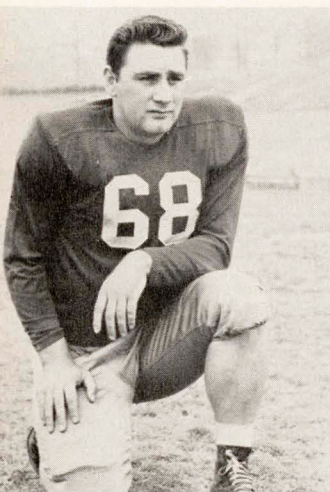

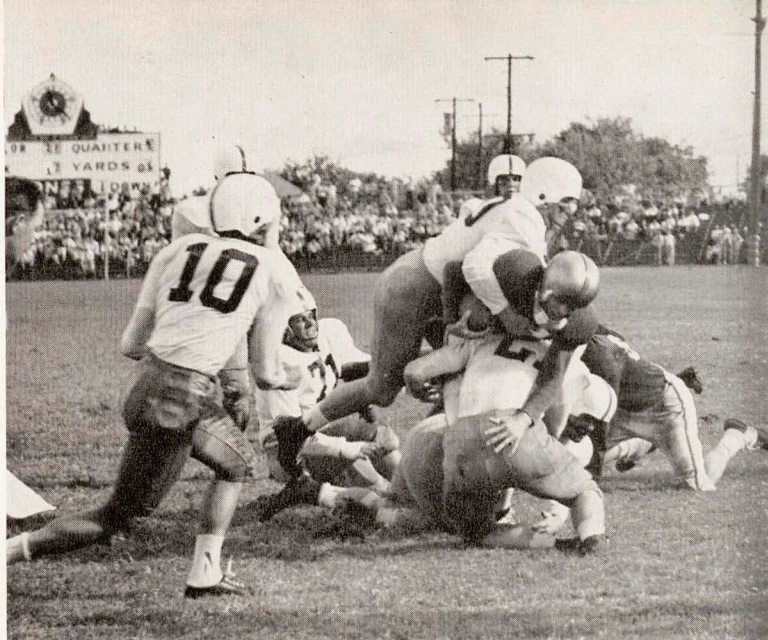

Play after play Berry found himself facing hard charging Buddy Brown, star of the game, Billy Hix, Frank Fischel, Fred Williams, Jimmy Smith, and Louie Schaufele.

ARKANSAS - 13

BAYLOR - 35

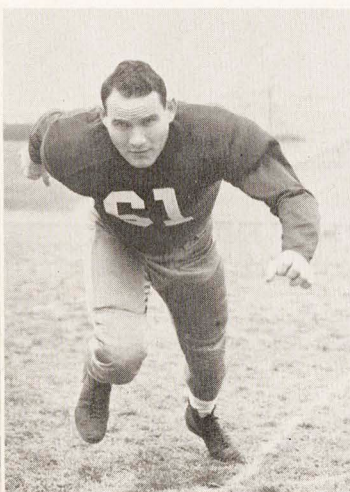

It was the same old story at Waco. The Baylor Bears hung a convincing 35-13 defeat on the Porkers, the third straight Baylor beating of a Barnhill eleven.

That good ole' Baylor line blocked down everything but the goal posts, little Buddy Parker came off the bench to befuddle big Hog tacklers, and sharp-shooting Adrian Burk completed pass after pass through a disorganized Hog aerial defense. The Porkers fought back, but it was Baylor Day at Waco's Municipal Stadium.

Arkansas scored first, a little past the four minute mark. Fred Williams fell on a Bear fumble on the Texans' 32. Nine plays later Logue fell over from the 1 on a sneak. Thornton's conversion attempt was good.

But moments later Baylor was on the scoreboard via a Burk to Jeffrey aerial. Dickerson's toe tied it at 7-7.

Then came a fateful second period that saw the Bears score three quick ones. Burke sneaked over from the 1, Buddy Parker scatted 45 yards for one and two yards for another. Dickerson's three conversion tries were good and it was 28-7 at halftime.

Arkansas rallied briefly after the half. Hard running Geno Mazzanti moved it out to the Hog 38 and from there came the best play of the game. Logue faded to pass, gave off to swift Joe Dugan on a Statue of Liberty, and Dugan fled up the sidelines for 62 yards and Arkansas' final touchdown. Baylor tallied its fifth touchdown minutes later and it was a 35-13 ball game.

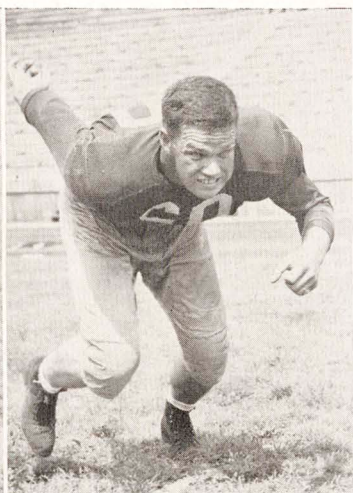

ARKANSAS - 14

TEXAS - 27

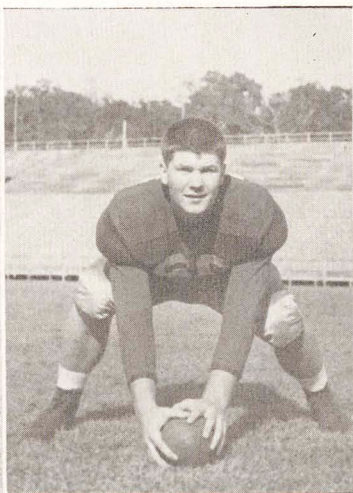

Texas' Longhorns staged a desperate, four touchdown, last half rally to overcome a 14-0 Arkansas halftime lead and hand the Porkers a 27-14 licking, their eleventh straight at the hands of the Orange and White.

For three quarters the Hogs made a battle of it, then Muscles Campbell went out with a severe knee injury and the Hog offense seemed to collapse. There Blair Cherry's men caught fire, and with Paul Campbell's deadly chucking paving the way, pulled even with, then away from the fading Porkers.

A blocked punt and Bobby Coy Lee's fumble on a punt try set up Arkansas' two touchdowns. First came Frank Fischel's block of Lee's punt from the Texas 14. Alert Buddy Brown got the bounding ball on the Steer 22 and Arkansas began to move. Two running plays put it on the 16, then a Logue to Fischel aerial had it on the 4. From there Logue sneaked it over, and Thornton's try for point was good.

Just before the first period ended it happened again. Lee fumbled a fourth down punt attempt and was swarmed down by Brown on the Texas 22. The payoff play was a six yard jump pass from Logue to Summerall in the end zone. Thornton split the uprights again.

Arkansas fought back hard in the closing minutes to close the gap, but the game ended with the Hogs holding the ball on the Texas 17.

The injury to Leon Campbell in this game to all intents and purposes ended the great fullback's collegiate career.

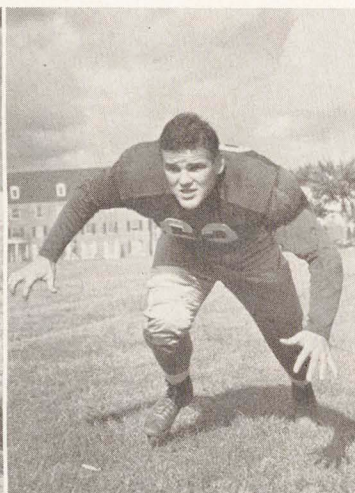

ARKANSAS - 7 VANDERBILT - 6

The game, the first of a new intersectional series, was played at Nashville's Dudley Field.

The Hogs got a lightning fast TD early in the second period, added a vital extra point, then threw up a rock-wall defense reminiscent of '46 to fight off late Vandy challenges and take the victory.

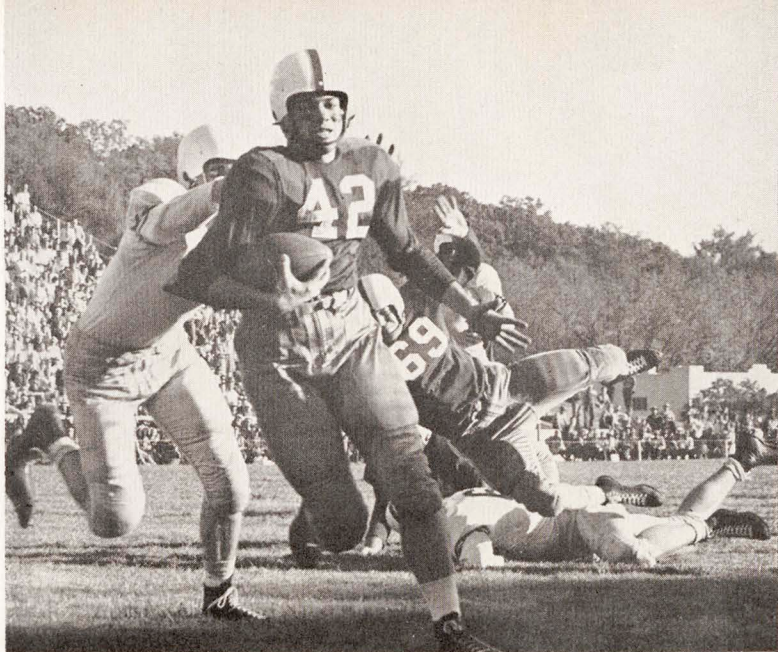

Geno Mazzanti hyped Hog hopes in the second period with a brilliant 77 yard gallop to the Vandy 2. Louie Schaufele spelled the winded Mazzanti and literally dived over for the big six. Thornton converted.

Flamin' Jimmie Wade, Vandy's fine quarterback, sparked a third period Commodore drive that was good for 81 yards and a touchdown. Sub back Bill Burton scooted the last 22 yards to get credit for the TD.

Spirits of Vandy fans soared high momentarily, but Billy Hix sent them plunging as he broke through beautifully to bat down Cannon Mayes' attempt for the point.

The rest of the way it was a dogged Hog defense scrapping hard to fight off desperate Commodore drives. Vandy almost made it late in the third period, but the Porkers dug in and held on their own 2.

Vandy's last big drive was halted when Louie Schaufele got his hands on a wayward Wade aerial.

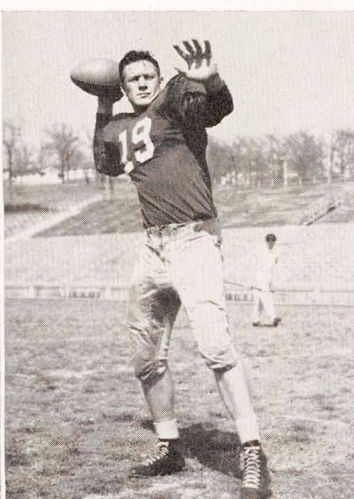

ARKANSAS - 27 TEXAS A & M - 6

fans were on hand to cheer the Hogs' fine performance.

The Aggies made a game of it for the first half, but superior Arkansas line strength began to tell and the last half was a rout.

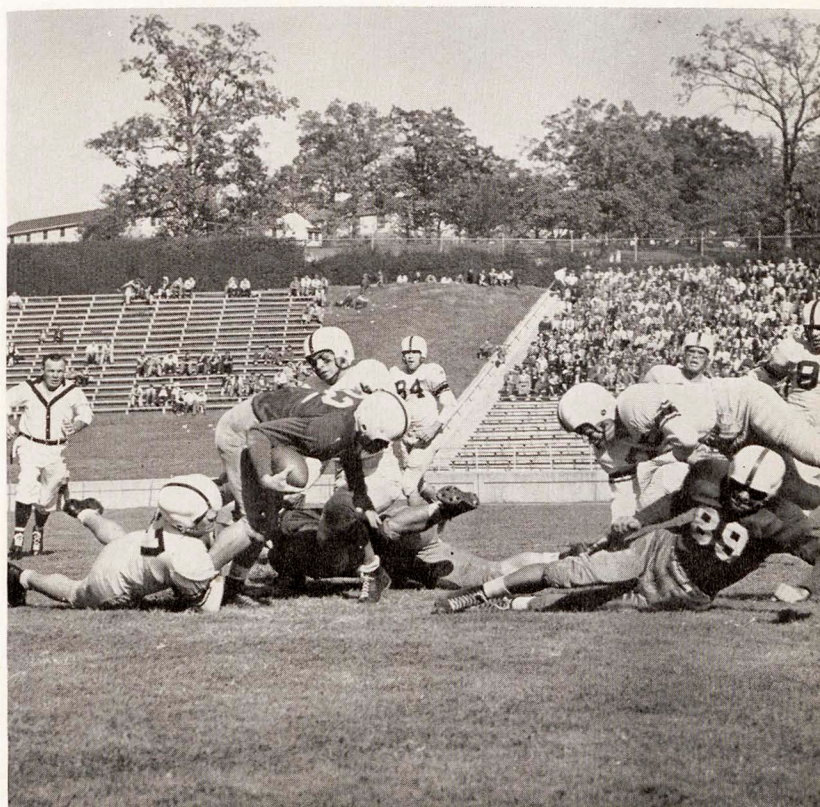

Harry Stiteler sent his Farmer backs into split T formations, the straight T, and the double wing, and from these varied patterns A&M quarterbacks chucked a total of 31 passes. It was a good try but the aerial attack backfired.

Arkansas' pass defense, though leaky, drug down five timely interceptions directly responsible for two Razorback touchdowns. Jim Rinehart snagged three of the interceptions.

It was Rinehart's interception of a pass that set the stage for Logue's TD toss to Summerall for an early Porker lead. Soph Dan Gardemal led the Ags right back to a score and it was close, 7-6, at halftime.

Schaufele boomed into the end zone, fumbled, and saw teammate Bill Stancil recover for the second Hog tally.

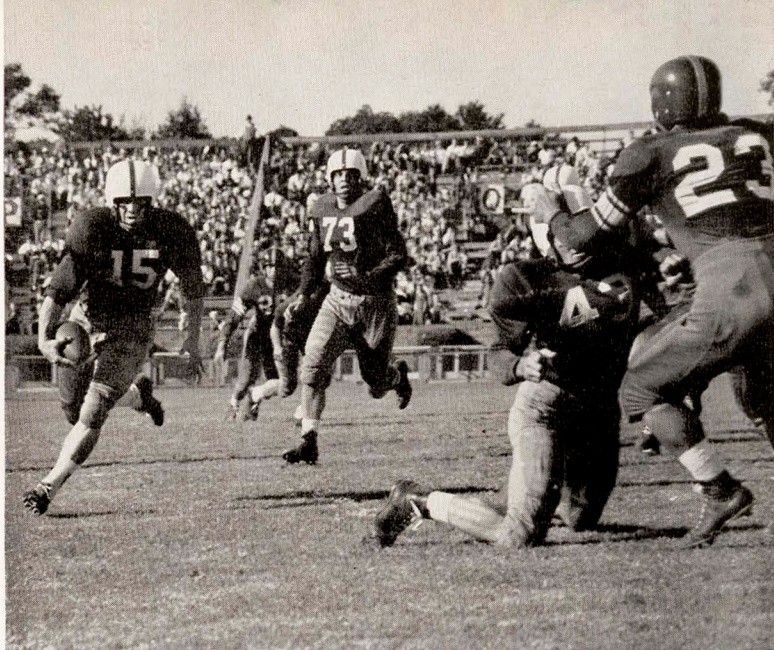

Great defensive play by Travis "Earthquake" Simpson set the stage for another Arkansas score. Simpson broke through three straight plays to hand Ag backs stiff losses and put them in a hole. A short drive by the Porkers carried back to the Ag 3 and Mazzanti ploughed over from there.

Owls, and the partial Houston crowd got a real thrill before the proud Blue and Gray wrapped up the win.

Doped as easy victors, Jess Neely's crew had to use two scoring passes to Froggie Williams for their victory margin, at the same time stalling a trio of Arkansas drives deep into their territory.

It looked like a rout in the offing when the Owls took the opening kickoff and moved it right back 83 yards to score, but that was all the point making until another 81 yard drive in the fourth period netted the Birds their final points.

Arkansas scored once, Don Logue prancing over on a quarterback sneak, but a penalty nullified that effort and the Owls took over on downs a moment later.

Logue almost scored again, breaking loose at midfield with Hog blockers in front of him, then being accidentally tripped up by Referee Don Looney.

Arkansas' defensive performance was brilliant in defeat. Except for those two costly aerials to Williams the pass defense was good. Tracy Scott spoiled Tobin Rote's season record of having no passes intercepted by snagging two of the Owl back's heaves.

Rice's supposedly superior line could do no good against the big Hogs except on those two scoring drives.

SMU's Mustangs didn't wait for the last seven seconds to prove their superiority over the Razorbacks this year. The Ponies unleashed a wham-bam first quarter offensive that shot them into a 20-0 lead at the 15 minute mark, then added two more tallies in the last half to complete the rout, 34-6.

Doak Walker, very un-All-American against Arkansas for the two seasons past, really had himself a field day against the Hogs. He chunked two passes good for 47 yards to the Hog 1, then went over himself for the first SMU points.

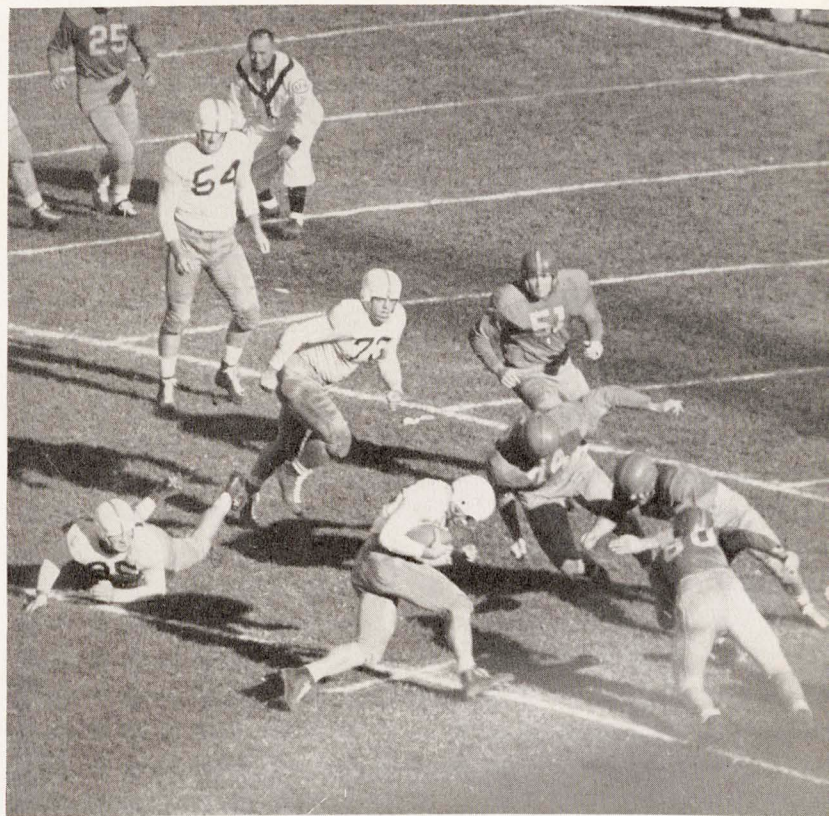

Rote's 34 yard reverse put it on the Hog 10 minutes later, and from there Walker danced into the end zone again.

A halftime rest seemed to help Arkansas, and the Porkers came back to march 50 yards for a third period score, Parks going over from the 4.

But Arkansas' glimmer of hope died quickly. Walker & Co. came right back with a 72 yard ground drive, Doak going the final yards that made it SMU 27, Arkansas 6.

Geno Mazzanti's fine running moved Arkansas to the Pony 5 in the fourth period, but the drive stalled and the Ponies opened their final march from there. Fred Benners covered most of the distance.

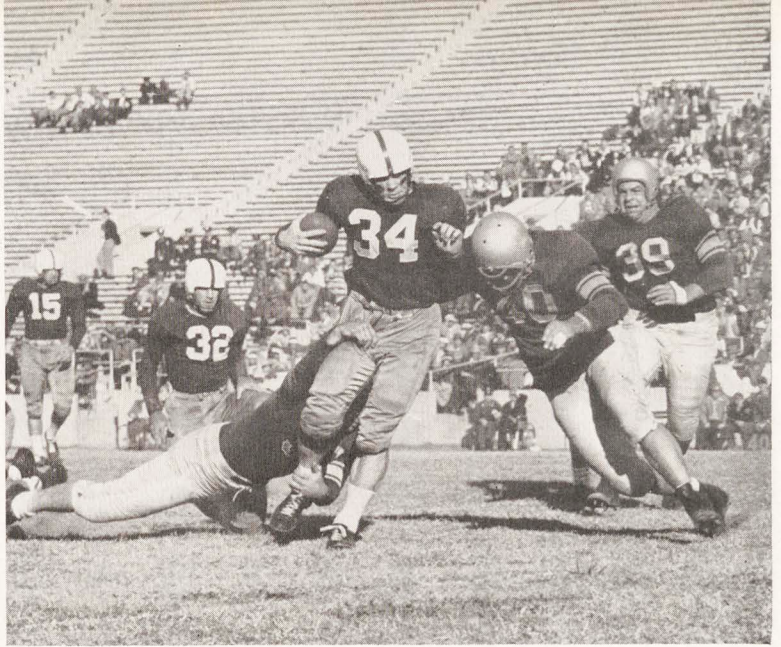

Arkansas' entire offense was Geno Mazzanti. The big Lake Village senior banged out 110 yards on 16 carries to pace all ball carriers and run his season's total to 494 yards, good for second place in the conference.

Memorial Stadium. The win gave William & Mary a 2-1 edge in the recently inaugurated series between the two schools. Arkansas won the first tilt 21-19 in the 1947 Dixie Bowl Classic. W&M took last year's game 9-0.

With Mazzanti and Campbell blasting away in the first half it looked like Arkansas' day, but a second period drive stalled on the Indian 1 and the Porker offense seemed to cool off. Campbell went out with a recurrent knee injury early in the last half, and from there on it was William & Mary's show.

The bright spot for Arkansas, if there was one, was the return to form of Theron Roberts. The Texarkana Terror played himself a real ball game, and was the one strong spot in the big Hog line.

For the third straight week Arkansas' offense effort was practically nil, especially when the Hogs moved within range of the Indian double stripe. It marked Arkansas' second blanking of the season. Their offensive records showed only one touchdown, that against SMU, in their last three outings.

Campbell's injury in this game marked the end of his collegiate career, and the big Bauxite Buster headed for Baltimore and a delicate knee operation in order to be ready for his pro debut with the Baltimore Colts.

40-7. Barnhill's charges had to spurt from a 7-7 halftime tie to annex the decision.

Arkansas' offensive power fell mainly on the ground, with Jim Rinehart directly the assault, but Don Logue's overhead barrage was good for 99 yards and a touchdown.

Geno Mazzanti turned in his top performance of the year, scoring two touchdowns, one on a 67 yard sprint through the entire Tulsa team.

Pistol Pete Annex, the Tulsans' fine passer, shot the Hurricane into an early lead as they scored the first time they got possession of the ball. Arkansas had to fight and fight hard to gain a 7-7 halftime score, Louie Schaufele tallying the Hog touchdown from the six inch line.

Then the Porkers began to open up. Early in the third period they reeled off a 60 yard drive good for a touchdown, Alvin Duke going the final yards.

Tulsa continued to fight gamely, but then Mazzanti broke loose for a 67 yard payoff run that broke the Hurricane spirit and the rest of the game was easy.

J. D. Smith tallied one of the last three touchdowns on a 20 yard end zone pass from Don Logue. Joe Baldridge skirted left end from the Tulsa 13 for the fifth Hog touchdown, and Mazzanti went over from 13 yards out for the last Porker points.

FRESHMAN TEAM

A flock of light but fleet young Shoats dropped three of five clashes in 1949. Coached by Clyde Van Sickle the fledgling Razorbacks were forced to traverse a rough path left by the cleat marks of their marvelous predecessors and were generally underrated as a team despite some very gifted material. Opening against the glory-bound Little Rock Jay-ees the Piglets were crushed 34-0. In their second struggle the young Porks slipped by a good Oklahoma Aggie frosh 27-19. Performing in Little Rock's War Memorial stadium the Porker plebes were clipped 19-13 by Ole Miss's junior Rebs. The Shoats stomped East Oklahoma's Aggie's 43-15, but were massacred by Tulsa's little Hurricane 61-12.

BASKETBALL

Arkansas' completely unpredictable Razorbacks racked up their second consecutive Southwest Conference co-championship this year behind the able tutelage of their new coach, Presley Askew.

Despite a mediocre season record of 12-12, the Razorbacks stormed through their Southwest Conference schedule and wound up in a deadlock for the laurels with the Baylor Bears. The Bruins were awarded the District Six championship and a trip to the Western NCAA in Kansas City on the basis of two conference beatings administered to the Porkers.

After a split in their first two games, a 59-41 win over Pittsburg Teachers and a heartbreaking 43-41 loss to the Oklahoma Aggies at Stillwater, the Hogs swung through Louisiana, dropping at 62-46 decision to LSU and upending Tulane, 42-41. Turning north, the travel-weary Razorbacks were sidetracked by Illinois, 65-53, and Indiana, 75-50.

Back in Little Rock, the Porkers were chilled by the Okie Aggies again, 44-36. A jaunt to the All-College extravaganza in Oklahoma City produced a 41-33 win over Alabama and losses to Wyoming, 40-26, and the pesky Aggies again, 57-33.

Another trip to Little Rock resulted in a near-upset victory over Kentucky, but the Wildcats came from behind to win, 57-53. Conference play found the Razorbacks defeating Texas in Fayetteville, 60-51, and then stumbling before the Texas Aggies, 43-35, in College Station. Rice fell in Houston to the tune of 60-56.

SMU was mauled in Fayetteville, 63-55, but disaster struck in Little Rock as the Baylor Bears romped, 60-49. Texas was stopped in Austin, 51-37, but Baylor again presented itself with a 52-42 win over the hot and cold Hogs. A non-conference clash in Little Rock with Pittsburg was taken by the Hogs, 41-36.

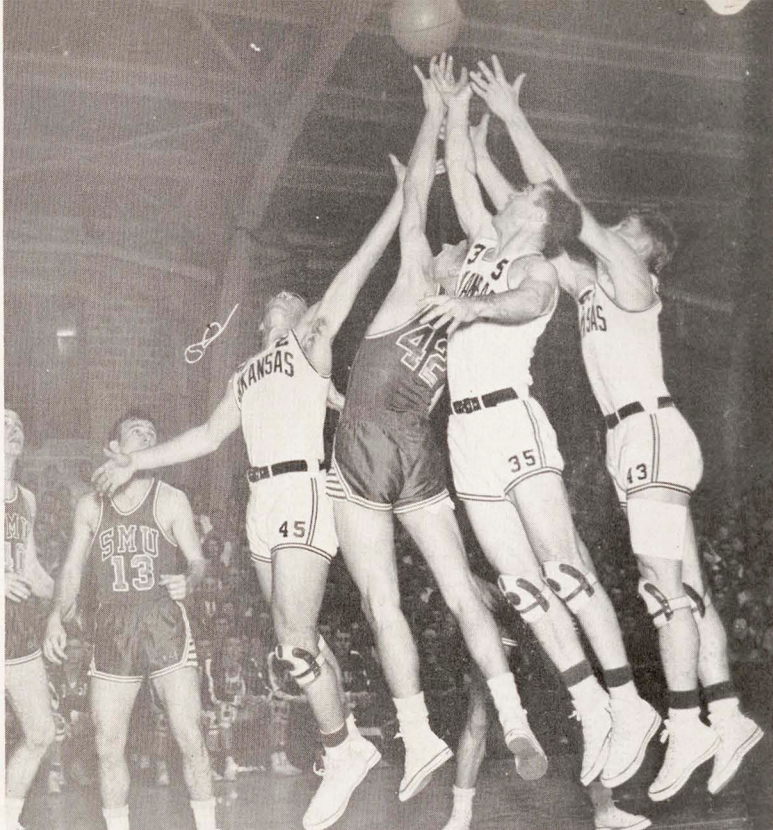

The Texas Ags were taken in Fayetteville, 52-46, and TCU was walloped 52-43. The Porkers then slaughtered Rice, 61-38, to take the SWC lead. A clear-cut championship slipped away from the Hogs in Dallas as SMU triumphed, 58-47. The season finale saw the Razorbacks rack up TCU, 45-39, and take their second straight co-championship home to the Ozarks.

PRESLEY ASKEW, Head Coach

The Razorback debut was an inauspicious affair, a facile 59-41 triumph over the ragged Pittsburg (Kans.) Teachers on the Arkansas lumber. John Borgsmiller drove in for a quick layup to boost the Hogs in front for good.

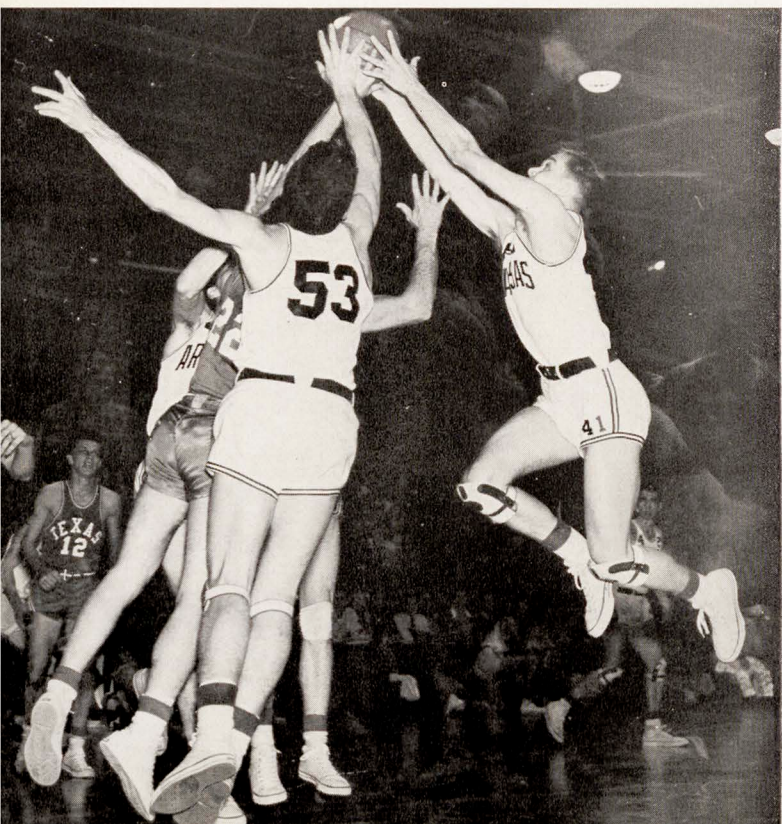

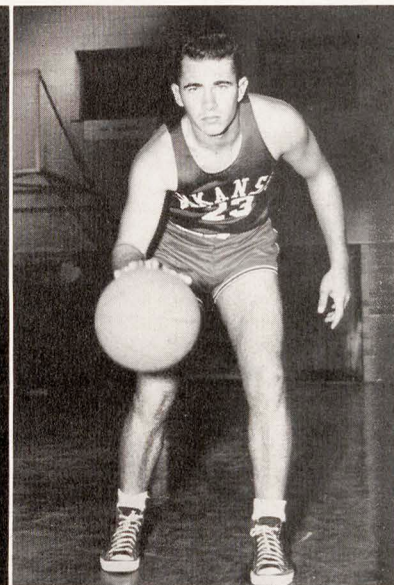

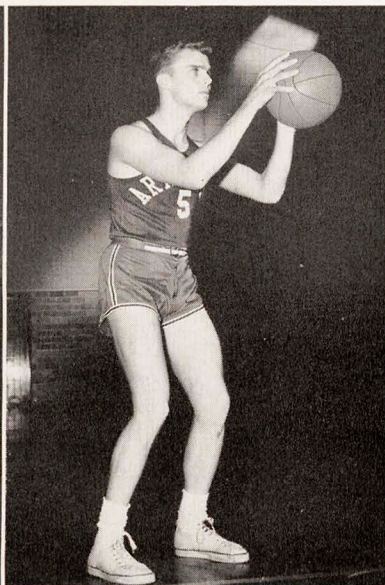

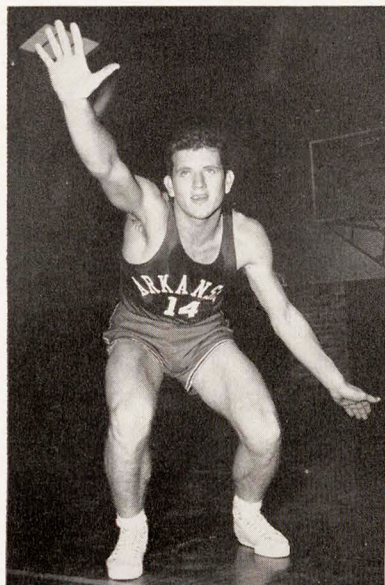

Dropping a 43-41 heart-wrencher to Oklahoma A&M at Stillwater, the Porks narrowly missed making it two straight. Gale McArthur, Aggie holdover from the 1949 NCAA finalists, swished a long set shot in the last six seconds to provide the edge. Arkansas' Gerald Hudspeth, senior sharp-shooter, equaled a brilliant shooting performance in the opener with 17 points. Arkansas outlit the Ags from the field, 15-14.

JIM

D. L. MILLER

Sallying in the swamps of the Bayou state, the Arkansas cagers began their travelin' traits by confronting two of Louisiana's best college clubs. LSU mangled the Porks 62-46 with a torrid fast break. Bob Meador of the Cats snapped loose in the final period and ended up with 19 point. Jimmy Cathcart was high for the Razorbacks with 12 tallies.

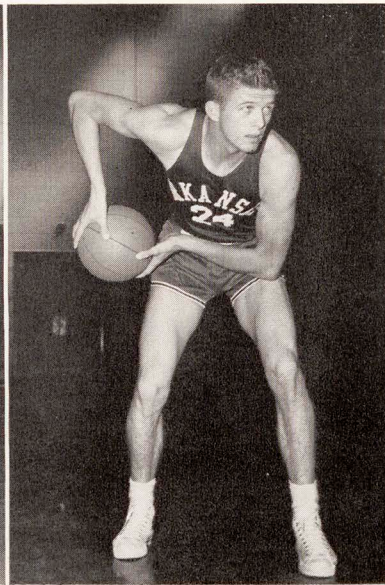

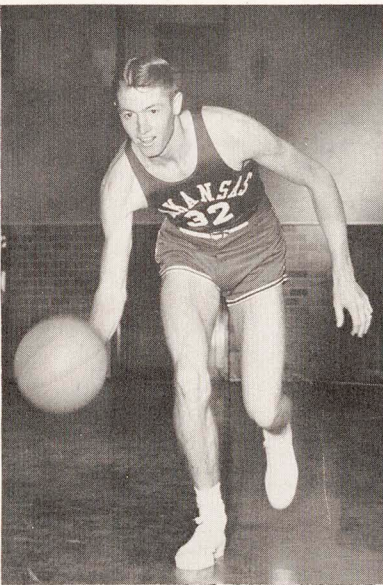

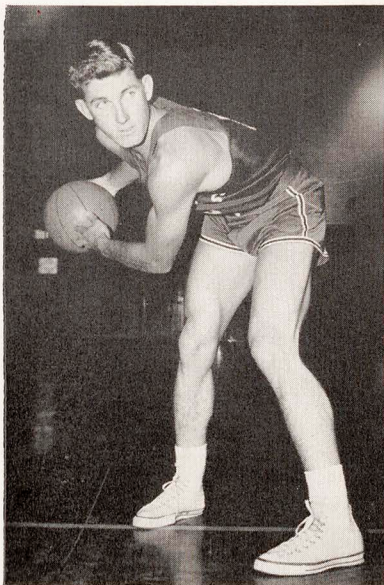

A clutch free throw by rusty-haired Norm Price, Mansfield forward, in the final five seconds presented Arkansas with a 42-41 uphill victory over Tulane. The Greenies' firehorse style was derailed by the ball-controlling Askewns upping their season slate to 2-2. Deceptive dribbling and sparkling floor chores brought D. L. Miller overwhelming plaudits from the New Orleans audience.

Turning north, the travel-weary Hogs searched long and fruitlessly for the solution to the racetrack brand of basketball employed by Illinois and Indiana. The classy Illini sprinted past the Hogs 65-53 at Champaign. A troupe of lightfooted marksmen overcame a 20-15 Hog halftime margin. Roy Gatewood and Ox Osterkorn split point plaudits for the winners with 11 markers apiece. Still, the protagonist of the fray was Gerald Hudspeth whose uncanny push shots accounted for 23 points.

Over at Bloomington the Hogs were trampled 75-50 by the hurtling Hoosiers. D. L. Miller checked in with a fine 15 point job for the Porks, but Bill Garrett of the winners piled up 20.

The Porks had another fling at the Oklahoma Aggies at Little Rock, the first of four brawls in the capital city, as a sort of warm-up for the star-sprinkled All-College tournament in Oklahoma City. But the Iba-tutored Cowpokes dished out some more of the same bitter medicine, chilling the Hogs 44-36. A Robinson Auditorium capacity crowd of 2,300 peered on while the Cowboys surged from behind midway in the second half. Arkansas presented the Ags with a 12 point pre-Christmas gift on foul shots in the final period, and the charity tosses spelled the difference. Veteran center Jack Shelton and Bob Seymour supplied the heavy artillery in the A&M attack.

The All-College spectacle boasted some of the country's classic clubs in Wyoming, Oklahoma A&M, Vanderbilt, etc. The Askewmen drew Alabama's Crimson Tide as a first round opponent and underwent few difficulties in crushing the Dixie Wave, 41-33. Jim Cathcart wrecked chaos in the Southerner's mechanism with his savage backboard work and a 16 point production. Slim Sam Smith, Razorback soph guard, was second high with eleven. Tiny Dyson Hamner, 5-9 'Bama captain, was top man for his charges with the same total.

Moving into the semi-finals, Arkansas ran afoul a towering Wyoming five from the Skyline conference. With a 6-4 height average, the Cowpunchers easily monopolized the boards to win, 40-26. Arnie Flynn collected 12 points to lead the lads from the Rockies. Big Bob Ambler meshed 10 to top Porker pointmakers. Contributing heavily to the Hog setback was an inability to hit from the 15-foot mark. Arkansas failed on 10 of 16 charity attempts and turned in the lowest point total of the tourney.

While Oklahoma City U. and Wyoming fought for the tournament title, the Porks challenged the Oklahoma Aggies in the consolation finals. And for the third time, the Ibamen annihilated the frustrated Hogs, 57-33. The Pokes molded a miraculous 73.8 percentage from the field, pouring in 19 of 27 field goal attempts. A Puncher sophomore, Don Haskins, hit six out of seven from more than 30 feet out to ruin the Hogs.

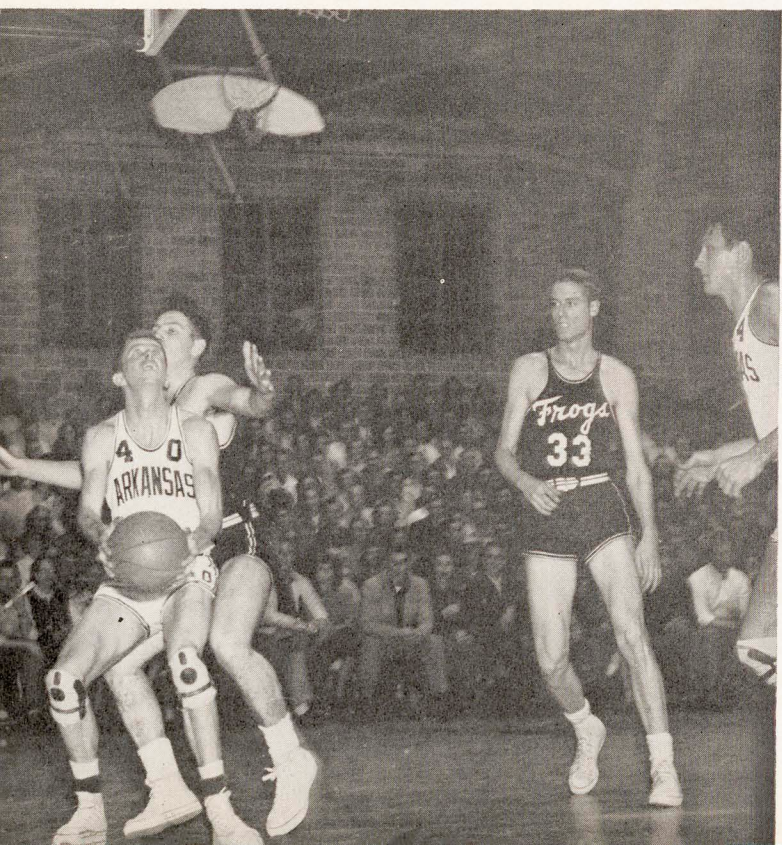

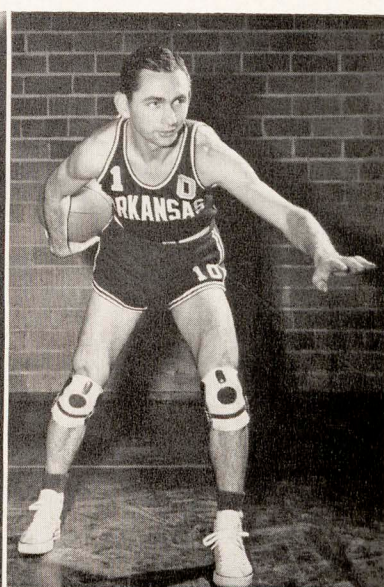

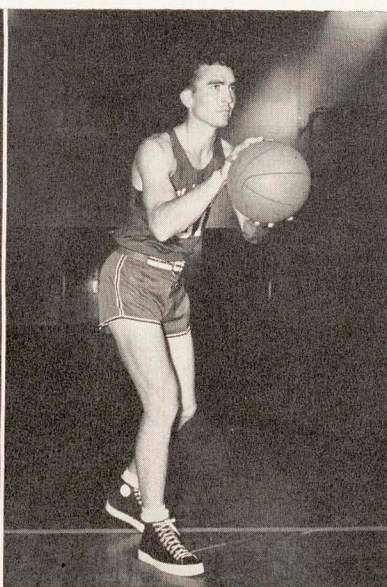

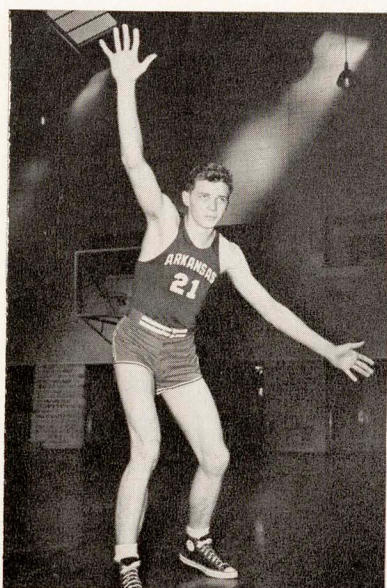

Returning to the capital city, the Askewns were pitted against the mighty Kentucky Wildcats, '49 NCAA champs, and their redoubtable mentor, Adolph Rupp. And if it hadn't been for an obscure little man and a lofty, string-bean center, the Black Baron of Lexington would have been forced to withdraw his vaunted Felines from the Wonder State with an ignominious beating blazoned on their record. Completely disdainful of the Cats' mighty reputation, the fired-up Hogs slipped into an early lead, which they didn't relinquish until near the finish. Unsung little guard Bobby Watson and seven-foot Bill Spivey collaborated for 42 points to overtake the Hogs, 57-53.

Texas' Longhorns rolled up to Fayetteville to establish the SWC season in Arkansas. Jack Gray's scrappy Steers threw up a tight zone around the Porkers' basket, but the hopped-up Hogs hit from outside to triumph, 60-51. Once again husky Jim Cathcart performed in superlatives, cleaning the defensive boards and notching 17 tallies with a two-hand set shot. In addition, Big Jim stopped Tom Hamilton, balding Texas hookshot sensation, with one fielder in the first period. Nevertheless, the Steer captain chipped in with 16.

The Razorbacks sauntered south for their first Texas tour clutching a meager 4-8 record, but counted as favorites nevertheless. Then the Porks were shocked by the tall and talented Texas Aggies, 43-35. Somewhat wearied by 20 continuous hours of bus and train travel caused by timetable complications, Arkansas couldn't locate the bucket while the Cadets were consistent marksmen. Marshalled by Jewell McDowell, diminutive guard, who sacked 17 markers, Marty Karow's crew was unthreatened.

But it was a different tale over in Houston where the rested Razorbacks peeled their shooting eyes to salvage the finale of the road trip, nipping Rice's downtrodden Owls 60-56. The brawl nip-and-tucked throughout the first half, but the fatal orb of Gerald Hudspeth unlocked the struggle with 17 points. The Ninner tossed in 14 while Jack Hess, fancy blond guard, and Bob Ambler dropped 11 each.

A phenomenal display of shooting accuracy carried the Hogs past Southern Methodist's proficient young Mustangs, 63-55, and into the loop lead. Laboring for only the third time on their home floor Arkansas crammed in 54 per cent of their field goal attempts. It was undoubtedly the best night of the season for Jim Cathcart and the hustling senior couldn't seem to miss, concluding with 20 points. With only one senior on the starting five, the Ponies made a battle of it, tying the count a half dozen times, until the Porks burst loose a little before intermission on Cathcart's firing. Junior Charlie Lutz, stupendous Methodist guard, led the Ponies with 14 tallies.

The conference chase settled into a strenuous grind from there on out with SMU, A&M, Baylor, and Arkansas the top contenders. Askew herded his Hogs back to Little Rock to joust with the ferocious Baylor Bruin in an unprecedented fray—the first home SWC game ever played away from Fayetteville by the Porks. And it turned out to be disastrous. The Grizzly, red-hot, mauled the Askewns, never strong on the auditorium wood, 60-49.

Stalemated in a four-way snare for the top spot, Arkansas embarked on another two-tilt march through the land of cattle and oil. Although bulldogging the Texas Steer at Austin 51-37, the Pigs had to settle for a split as they charged headlong into that Waco whammy. Baylor knifed the Hogs 52-42. Tom Hamilton proved Texas' most consistent and only accurate marksman as he worked his hookshot for 17 points. Bob Ambler and Jim Cathcart sank a pair of 12's to spearhead the Porks.

Just as in Little Rock the Baptists were heated to a blast-furnace pitch, dunking 44 per cent of their shots from the floor. Cathcart and Ambler again slated high point orchids with 11 each for Arkansas, although Baylor's Bill "Shorty" Strack dropped 14.

Scheduled as a breather and headline attraction for Little Rock fans, Pittsburgh's puny Panthers, coached by venerable Doc Carlson, troubled the Hogs no end before yielding 41-36. Shifted to the pivot post Cathcart popped in 20. For the ragged Cats, Center George McCrossin slipped loose for 17.

Turning point of the season for the Red-and-White came at Fayetteville, site of the second Arkansas-Texas Aggie squabble. The Hogs slapped the lanky Cadets 52-46 in a spine-tingler which unseated the Ags from the SWC leadership. Jack Hess with 15, Ambler with 14, and Cathcart with 13 provided the scoring punch. Arkansas prepared to host TCU and Rice with a 5-3 slate.

The Horned Frogs were pushovers after an impervious sinking man-to-man defense ruined their offense. Arkansas copped 52-43.

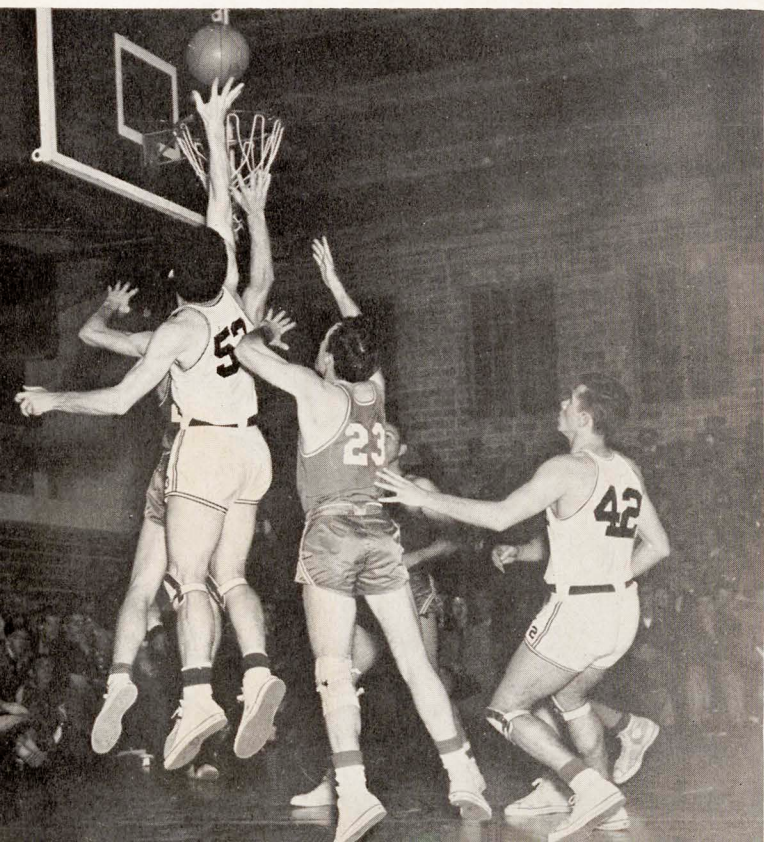

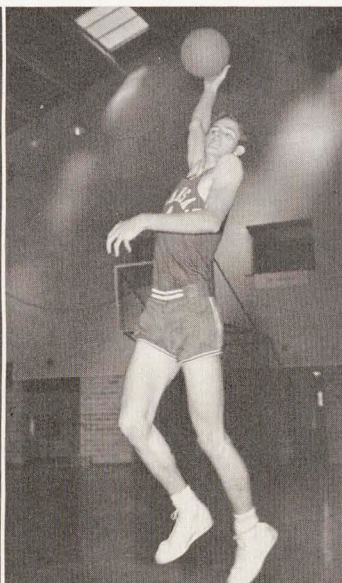

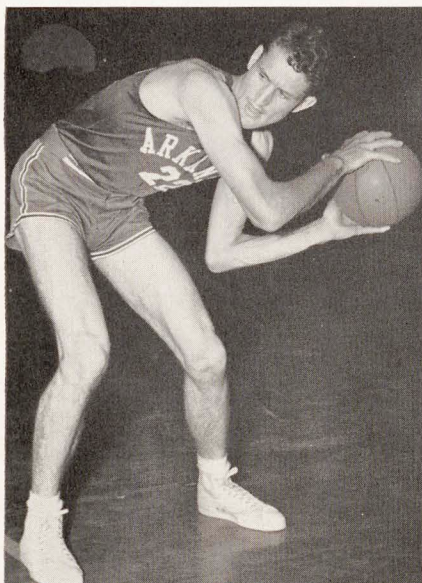

By clobbering the Owls 61-38, the Hogs pirated their final home clash to move into the circuit forefront with a 7-3 mark.

And so the Porkers moved down to Dallas with a clear shot at the loop diadem—if they could win their wind-up pair of brawls on the Texans' own stomping grounds. However, woefully enough, the searing Southern Methodist Ponies set a blistering first half pace to outdistance the Hogs 58-47. With a secure 16 point margin at halftime, SMU cannily decelerated into a semi-stall. Although the Porks gave out with a noble effort they could never quite catch the Hosses. Hess staged a brilliant show for the Hogs with 15 tallies and a fine defensive performance, but slender Charlie Lutz canned 19 points. The Dallasites checked in with a good 39 per cent from the field, while Arkansas compiled only a poor 30.6 percentage. The big edge was at the foul line, though. SMU slipped in 16 of 20 gift tosses while Arkansas was striving to come from behind in the last stanza.

Jumping over to Fort Worth, the Askewmen needed only to wallop the Toads to split the conference crown with the victor of the SMU-Baylor drama at Waco. And the Hogs came through for their slice with a 45-39 gigging of the Frogs while Baylor drubbed SMU 70-61. Captain Cathcart sparkplugged the Razor-back finale with 17 tallies and a glistening backboard chore. Trailing Ninny in the scoring list were Jack Hess with nine, and Bob Ambler and Gerald Hudspeth with ten apiece. Deft George McCleod, TCU's first-year pivot man, rained 15 counters through the nets.

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL

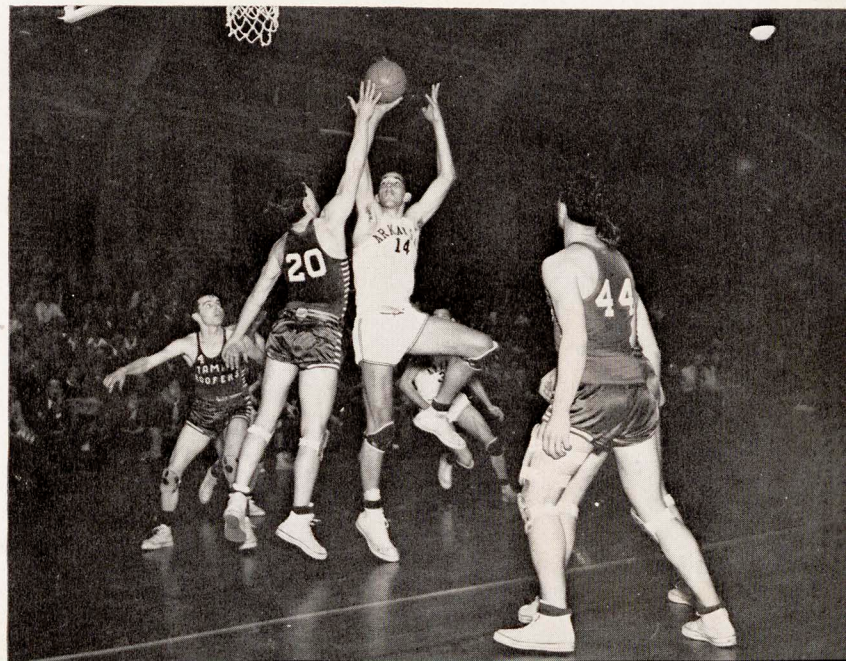

Arkansas' 1949-50 freshman basketball team was really one for the books. A hand-picked group of fledgling cagers, heralded as the finest frosh quintet in the history of the school, stirred widespread interest in the ranks of Arkansas by authoring an 11-1 record for the campaign. Only once did the Shoats yield, and then to a strong Louisiana independent aggregation. Billy "Toar" Hester, 6 feet 11 inches of growing boy, whom Razorback coaches nabbed from under the noses of dozens of national hardwood powers, was the bell-weather of the frosh machine. One of the nation's most widely sought-after players after his graduation from Hall Summit, La., last spring, Hester took up the Porker system like an old hand and began shedding his youthful awkwardness immediately under the watchful eye of Coach Ralph Ward. Coaches who saw Toar in action compared him with George Kok, former Arkansas great, and Bob Kurland, the Oklahoma A&M All-American, in their first year of college ball.

Fayetteville contributed three capable competitors in Gene

RALPH WARD, Coach

Lambert, Tryon Lewis, and Don Trumbo. Lambert, son of the former Razorback cage mentor, played only until mid-term, but displayed enough finesse to assure himself of varsity action in the future. Lewis was Hester's best scoring mate, and was the live-wire of the team. He and Trumbo, whose frosh career was nipped short by a leg injury, were all-staters in their final year of prep competition. Gerald Bryant, Joel Lucke, and Wilburn Wood rounded out the small squad. Lucke is from Pine Bluff, while Wood played with Hester at Hall Summit, and Bryant was all-state at Many, La., High. Development of these sparkling youngsters next year will fall to Coach Presley Askew, who remarked more than once this year that most any coach would be glad to begin building with a similar group. His plans for fitting the gigantic Hester and his mates into the 1950-51 varsity set-up were begun long ago and Arkansas fans are eagerly looking forward to seeing these plans unfold.

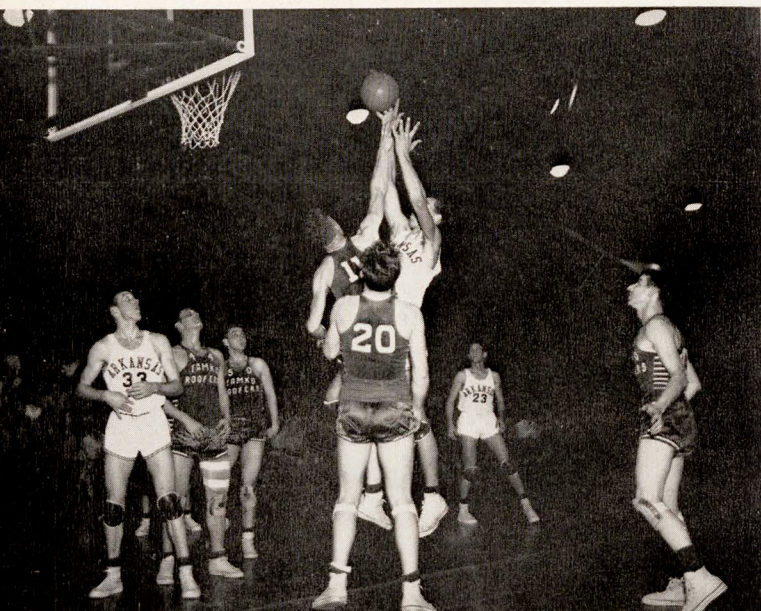

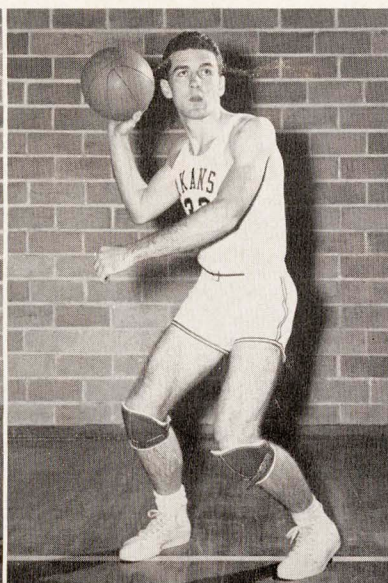

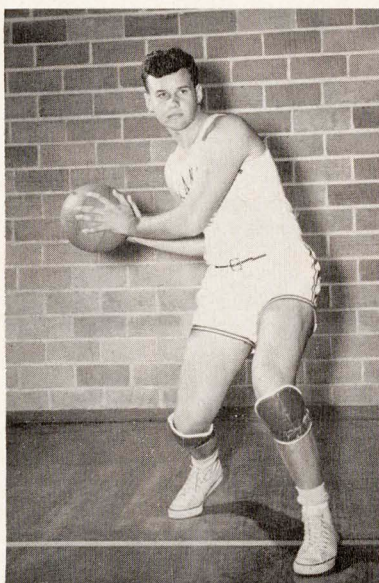

The schedule was a tough one from start to finish. Billy Hester, averaging 20-plus points per game, was, of course, the marked man. Tall "Toar" began his career at Arkansas by registering 21 points as the Shoats took the measure of Oklahoma A. and M. Tech., 47-36, to inaugurate the season in the local field house. College of the Ozarks, co-champions of the AIC, was the next victim, by a 53-47 margin, in a game played at Van Buren. Hester sank 24 points in that one. January 18, Toar and Lewis, who came to be dubbed "big 'un" and "little 'un," provided the spark for a 45-39 decision over the Tamko Roofers of St. Joseph, Mo., in a preliminary to a varsity game here. It was the first of two verdicts to be posted over the Missourians. Coach Ward's team suffered its first and only setback of the season at the beginning of a road trip on which they succumbed to a powerful Caushatta, La., five composed of former college stars. It was a close decision, too, 63-61, with Toar bucketing 23 points. Swinging back into Arkansas, the frosh, led by Hester again, whipped the Malco Flyers at Hot Springs. The big center's tally was 27 points. The following Saturday Toar pulled up with a charley horse as the Shoats came from behind to nip Prescott's Legionnaires, 53-43, with Lewis and Bryant shouldering the scoring burden. Big Toar counted his lowest total of the schedule, 10 points, but it gave his mates a chance to grab off the spotlight and they delivered in veteran fashion. The Shoats returned to home grounds to engage the Tamko Roofers in a return match and once more came up with the blue chips, 45-43, but only after a serious threat by the visitors. It was a tough one all the way and only a second half surge allowed the triumph. The scoring was equally distributed among Hester, Bryant, Lewis and Trumbo, with Toar's vicious rebounding in the closing minutes making the difference. Little Rock's Robinson Auditorium was the scene of the next freshman battle, and Little Rock Junior College was the opposition. The frosh avenged a severe beating handed them on the gridiron, by turning back the Trojans in handy fashion, 53-30. Hester was the big noise with a 29-point total, but the overall floor game of Lewis, Trumbo and Lambert caught the fancy of the capital city gallery. Another tilt was carded with the Jaycees for later in the season, but the clubs never got together again. One of the biggest feathers in the already flourishing caps of the frosh was their triumph over KC-Carlisle, another independent aggregation. For a fast and furious half, the independents, captained by former Little All-American Ken Crossell, made a real scrap of it. During the second heat, however, the well conditioned Shoats began to administer some telling licks and closed with a rush to win out, 49 to 35. It was a duel between Hester and Crossell, hook shot stylist, that drew the raves of the crowd, and even though he was held to 14 points, Toar's shadowing of the lanky Little Rockian won the plaudits of Little Rock sports writers. Other members of the KC team were Alan Carter, former Arkansas star, and J. W. Fullerton, long a leader in Little Rock's independent loops. The drums were beating for the future Razorback stars and they headed toward the wire with a 9-1 record, and it was the general consensus that at least two of them, Lewis and Hester, were ready for varsity competition then. Prescott was next on the card, and the Shoats tucked away their second win over the South Arkansas quintet by a cut-and-dried 54-to-46 decision. Hester and Lewis meshed 19 points each to earn scoring honors, and Bryant followed close behind with 14. Throughout the latter half of their schedule, they played without the services of Lambert and Trumbo, but Lucke, Wood, and Jack Hill filled in adequately. Lambert's freshman eligibility terminated and Trumbo was sidelined with a leg injury. The Shoats put a fine touch to their season by closing the card with a 45-to-30 nod over the Okmulgee Aggies. The game was played in the field house as a benefit for the Razorback Band, and Coach Ward's outfit put on one of their best shows of the season. Hester, writing the end of a great frosh career, turned on the steam to bucket 21 points, and then he didn't see full-time duty. The 240-pounder showed marked improvement over the season's inaugural, indicating a banner season for the varsity next year.

TRACK TEAM

Bill Bradford is nosed out in the 880.

When the 1950 RAZORBACK was hustled off to press, the UA thinclads had journeyed to two big meets and cracked two Arkansas records. Under the tutelage of the new Head Coach, Johnny Morriss, formerly of Southwestern Louisiana Institute, the Hogs raced into third place at the Southwestern Recreation Meet at Fort Worth in their first competition. Then on the following weekend the Hogs moved into Stillwater for the Oklahoma A&M Relays, there toppling a pair of meet and school marks. Beverly Berry slashed the old high jump record with a leap of 6-5½. The two-mile relay team composed of Sam Smith, Oliver Gatchell, Bill Bradford, and James Brown lowered the previous mark to 7:58.8.

An amazingly potent Porker cross country crew—Tom Hardin, Bill Cairns, Oliver Gatchell, Bill Bradford, James West, James Brown, and Jim Mullins—astonished the SWC entries last fall by grabbing off a second place in the loop meet. The Hog Harriers had already swept a triangular meet in Dallas with SMU and TCU, taking all of the first five places.

Big event of the 1949 season was the thirty-fourth annual SWC meet which was unfolded in Fayetteville for the first time in conference history. Hobe Hooser's Razorbacks could manage only a fourth as five records fell and one was tied. Texas A&M, the new champ, shattered five of the marks for first. Texas finished a tight second, and Rice contributed a strong third. The Porkers entered seven other meets with not too much success.

Second Row: Kilgallen; Gelazin; Brown; Shawgo; Schaufele; Smith; Stendel; Porter; Ratcliff; Alexander.

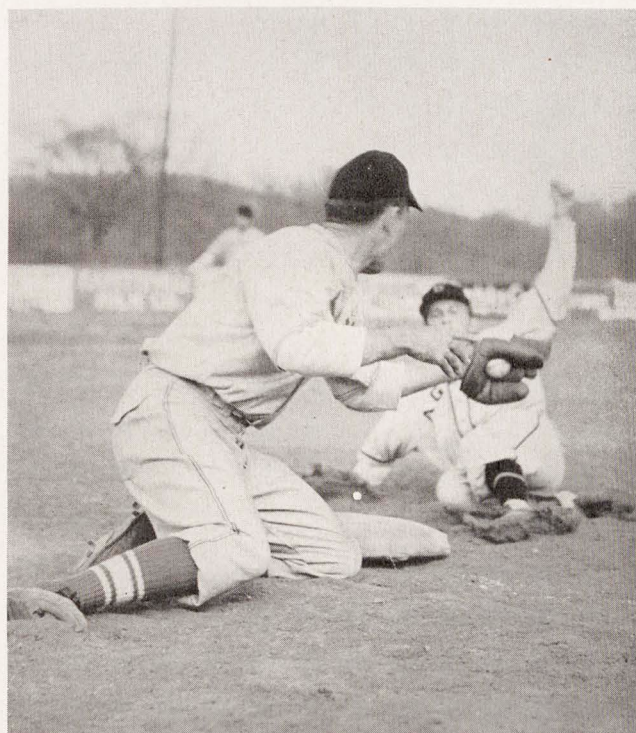

The 1949 baseball team, under the guidance of Coach Deke Brackett, logged a commendable 7-5 record that spoke well of its efforts, considering the strength of the schedule. The Razorback nine opened on an auspicious note by sweeping a double-header from Washington University, then went on to decision Tulsa twice, Poe Motor Company of Little Rock, Kansas, and Washington for a third time, while bowing to Bradley, Oklahoma A&M, the Fayetteville Merchants, a strong independent aggregation, and Washington and Kansas in return engagements.

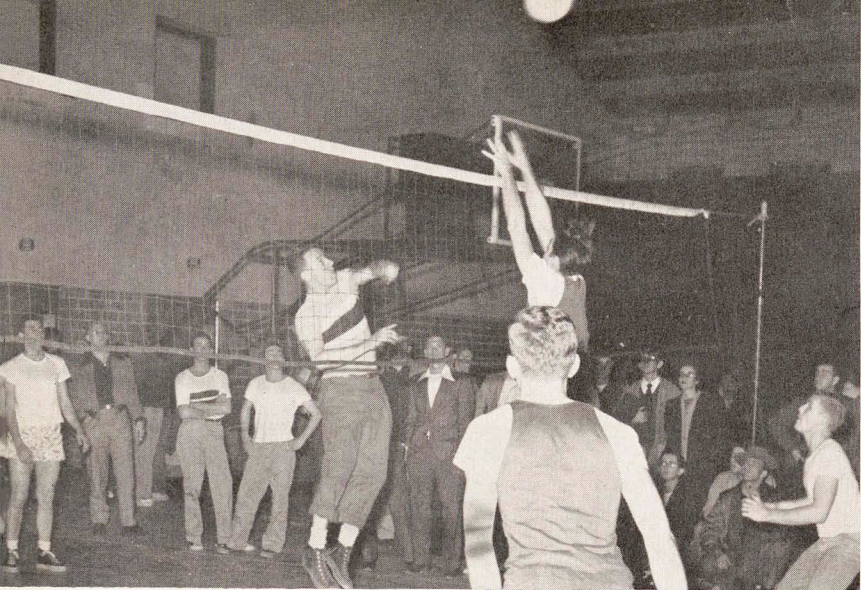

Bill Ferrell, former professional catcher, was at the helm when the 1950 diamond edition buckled to another tough intersectional card. Veteran strength in the persons of Catchers Chris Brown and Bob Williams, Infielder Dewey Thomason, and Outfielders Marvin Stendel and Louie Schaufele formed a stout opening day nucleus. Ferrell dug into a polished group of freshman graduates to come up with a well-balanced team. Jack Shawgo and John Bailey were on the firing line as the team's best pitchers, but they received occasional mound help from other squad members.

The 1950 team was the fourth nine to be fielded by Arkansas following a lapse of 17 years in which baseball was not listed on the spring sports agenda. Progress displayed under Ferrell's tutelage gave promise of big innings for Razorback diamond fortunes in years ahead. Plans are to increase the number of games each year until the schedule is on a par with the most formidable in this section.

An ever-expanding intramural program at the University of Arkansas caught the attention of every student on the campus at one time or another during the year.

SAE, making a strong bid to carry the intramural "sweepstakes" trophy home with them again this year, out-passed, out-ran, and simply out-classed all opposition in their touch football league as they swept through an undefeated season. They were equally potent in the play-off tourney as they rolled unmercifully through their preliminary games and then dropped Sigma Chi in the championship round.

The Sig Alphas continued their domination in other sports as they took first place in the cross-country race, the free-throw tournament, and volleyball. Though Jim Bean, Lloyd Hall, set the record-breaking pace in the cross-country, SAE placed enough men in runner-up positions to take first place points. Their tall, experienced volleyball team had little trouble in repeating a victorious performance given last year. Once more Sigma Chi took the second-place slot.

A record-breaking entry of forty teams failed to halt the powerful Razorback Hall aggregation as they annexed the basketball trophy to the athletic dorm for the second straight year. They went through the regular season with a 7-0 record and defeated Sigma Nu in the final round of the play-off tourney.

An All-Intramural basketball team was selected this year by the Arkansas Traveler on a basis of individual ability, teamwork, and sportsmanship. The team was chosen from the entire field of forty teams. The first squad was composed of Hal Cochran, Sigma Nu; J. D. Smith, Razorback Hall; Gray Eargle, Eagles; Hugo Ackerman, Redbirds; and Edwin Rise, Kappa Sigma. Claborn, Cowden, Griffie, Coffee, and Anderson made up the second All-Intramural team.

Kappa Sigma was given permanent possession of the boxing and wrestling trophy, as they took top honors in the annual slugfest for the third successive year. This phase of the intramural program drew more attendance than any other. A crowd of some 2500 witnessed the thrilling final bouts. Kappa Sigma amassed a total of 218 in winning first place, far ahead of their nearest rival, SAE, who garnered only 122.

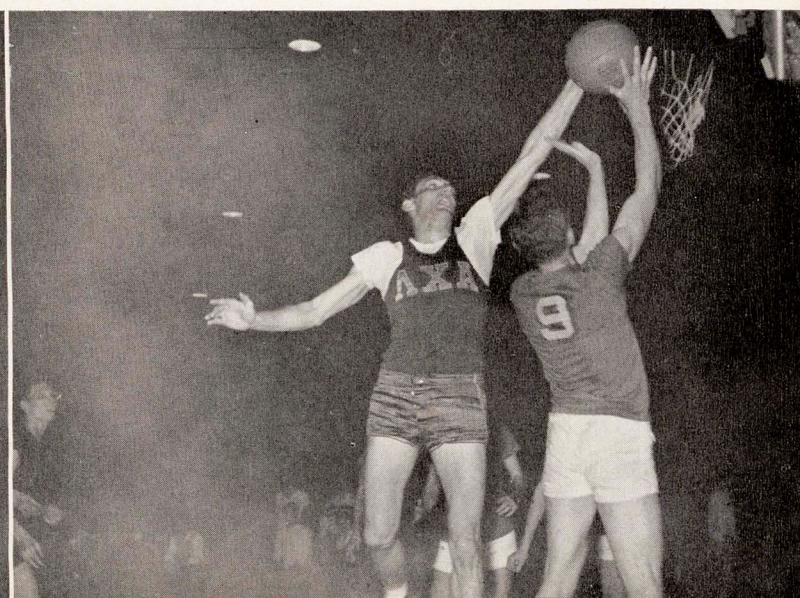

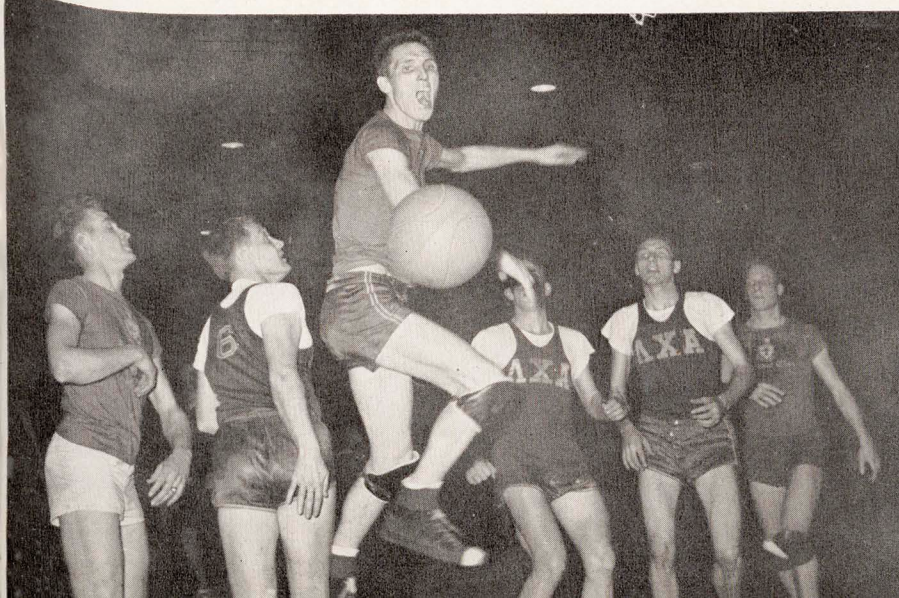

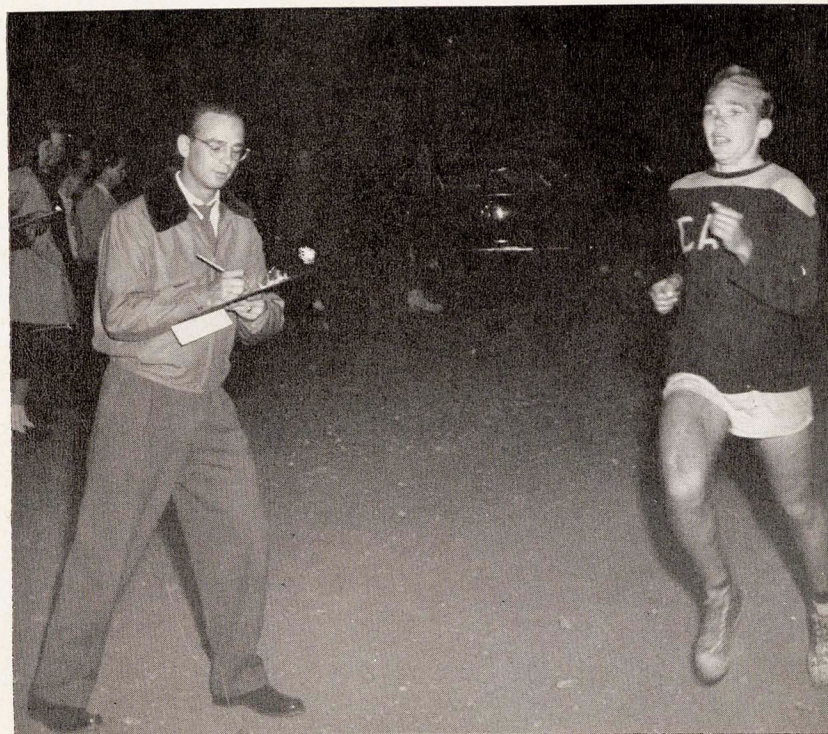

At press time, Sigma Alpha Epsilon had a strong grip on first place in the "sweepstakes" standings, but was still within the reach of runner-up Kappa Sigma and not too far from Sigma Chi and Razorback Hall, holding down third and fourth, respectively.

Coming to Arkansas this year from the University of Missouri was Frank Myers. Through his capable guidance as faculty advisor and supervisor of the intramural department, vast strides were taken in the intramural program of expansion and improvement. Student managers Ralph Patterson and Hugo Ackerman worked hand in hand with Mr. Myers to keep the huge intramural system in excellent condition.

Four new playing fields were constructed for touch football this year in a move to ease and better the crowded facilities on the campus. They are located in the old Camp Leroy Pond area.

For the first time this year, an intramural handbook was published by the department in order that all students might better understand the program.

COL. RAY M. O'DAY

ARMY ROTC

This year, under the direction of Colonel R. M. O'Day, the Army section of the Military Department and Army Reserve Officers' Training Corps has made an enviable record. The Department of the Army Inspecting Team, composed of high ranking Army officers used these phrases to describe the Corps in the written report to Headquarters, Fourth Army: "This is an excellent corps", "high quality of leadership demonstrated by cadet officers and cadet non-commissioned officers", "rifles were better aligned while marching than is usually noted in Regular Army troops," "training and discipline is superior."

Since the founding of the University in 1872 a course in Military "Tactics" has been taught, as provided for in the Morrill Act. The first catalogue of the University states: "All able-bodied male students will be required to drill twice a week." For the school year 1872-73, Lieut. Edwin C. Curtis was assigned to supervise this activity. In the intervening 77 years the Cadet Corps has developed from a small group, with no uniforms or equipment, to a well-rounded organization giving specialized training in tactics, leadership, and personnel management in the Signal Corps and Infantry, with all the latest equipment. For example, the Signal Corps unit has a 400 watt short-wave radio station, with an operational radius of several thousand miles, which is licensed for both military and civilian amateur operation.

The successful completion of the Advanced Course, which is the last two years of ROTC training, leads to a commission in the Organized Reserve Corps. The graduates from this course are the principal source of the thousands of officers necessary in times of national emergency.

The students taking the ROTC Advanced Course are carefully selected for character, intelligence, alertness and aptitude. The calibre of the Advanced ROTC students at the University of Arkansas is attested by the splendid record of achievement at summer camps. At last summer's camp, where the U. of A. Cadets were in competition with hundreds of Cadets from other colleges and universities, two of the four highest awards, "Outstanding Company Cadet," were won by two Arkansas men, Cadets Charles "Chuck" Milan and William "Buddy" Brown. Awards of "Outstanding Cadets" were won by Cadets Maitland Rutledge and Larry E. Randall. In addition, as a result of demonstrated proficiency and aptitude for the military service five members of the class graduating in June have been tendered commissions in the Regular Army. They are: Clinton D. Jones, William E. Long, Joel W. Griffith, Charles F. Dietz and Harold D. Yow.

LT. COL. MERTON L. PARKS

AIR FORCE ROTC

The beginning of the school year 1949-50, marked another milestone in the history of the Air Force ROTC Program since its activation at the University of Arkansas in 1946.

This year for the first time the Air Force ROTC Program of instruction was offered to the basic students. In addition the unit was given co-equal status with other ROTC programs, and the direction of the program was transferred to the Professor of Air Science and Tactics.

During the first year of autonomous operation, under the leadership of Lieutenant Colonel Merton L. Parks, USAF, the Air Force ROTC Program was among the finest in history. Approximately forty-five cadets received their Second Lieutenant's bars. The Air Force ROTC Cadet Corps strength was over four hundred as the non-veterans again continued to fill the freshman and sophomore classes.

Last year the Summer Camp for Air Force Cadets was held at Lowry Air Force Base, Denver, Colorado, in the Tenth Air Force Area. Here the Cadets from the University of Arkansas trained and pitted their skills against cadets from the states of the Middle West.

The Air Force Cadet Corps this year was comprised of a Wing, with two Groups of two Squadrons each. The Wing was commanded by Cadet Colonel B. W. Schultz.

The successful completion of Advanced Air Force ROTC entitles a Cadet to a commission as a Reserve Officer in the USAF, and is open to veterans or students who have successfully completed the Basic ROTC course. If selected by the PAS&T, these students enter the course to train six hours weekly and attend one six-weeks summer camp. Those students designated as Distinguished Military Graduates by virtue of their outstanding qualities of leadership and aptitude for military service, and who desire a military career as Regular Officers in the United States Air Force. In June, 1949, Regular Air Force Commissions were accepted by the following students: M. L. Brown, J. R. Cross, J. Jenkins, and W. R. Stapleton.

Since the Air Force ROTC was inaugurated in the Fall of 1946, Air Force Reserve Commissions have been awarded to 185 students, and Regular Air Force Commissions have been tendered to ten students.

Major Thomas W. Spurgin, the Plans and Training Officer and Instructor for Advanced Administration course is the Senior Air Force Instructor. Captain Herbert C. Burton, the Instructor for freshmen is the Adjutant for the Unit. Captain Claude A. Hughes, Jr., is the Instructor for the Advanced Maintenance Engineering Course and also instructs in sophomore classes.

Univ. Mixed Chorus Ensemble, Choral Singing

The University Mixed Chorus, under the direction of Professor Harry E. Schultz, is composed of the finest singers on the campus. The requirements for membership are a basic knowledge of music and the ability to read notes. Some previous choral training, such as that available in high school, is highly desirable. One hour credit is given for Mixed Chorus.

The aim of Mixed Chorus is to improve the quality of ensemble singing at the University of Arkansas and at the same time, to provide students with an opportunity to gain experience in choral singing. The Chorus uses the best choral literature in its concerts.

Univ. Men's Bible Class Bible Study Group

The University Men's Class is the largest organized group in the student program of the Central Presbyterian Church. The class recognizes the importance of the development of Christian fellowship in University of Arkansas campus life. In addition to the regular Sunday morning classes, special days such as Homecoming, Thanksgiving, Christmas and Mother's Day are suitably celebrated. In accordance with a custom of nearly twenty-five years, members of the football and basketball teams are honor guests each season.

RESIDENCES OF THE PEOPLE

THE people live on or near the campus, making a private life for themselves outside the close-knit interests of the campus and group social life. However, their private lives are always closely intermingled with and influenced by the campus. Living together, in dorms, sorority or fraternity houses, or private boarding houses, they are drawn closer together, and each gets an insight into the problems and outlook of the other. In these comfortable University residences, the people play together, enjoy life together, but even there they must work together, too, to make the facilities of their particular group function for the good and advancement of all the residents. So Greeks and dorm residents elect house officers or governing boards to represent their interests at home. In such well-organized living groups as are found on the campus, the individual quickly finds a place for himself, works to make his residence a true home and a congenial gathering-place, and thus takes another step on the road to becoming a well-rounded and capable person.

GREGSON HALL

This year the newest dormitory on the campus celebrated its second anniversary. It was in the fall of 1948 when some two hundred men officially opened the massive hall named for W. S. "Pop" Gregson, the University Chaplain and famous campus personality. Gregson Hall, with its spacious cafeteria, handy snack bar, laundry room, barber shop, lounge, and mail room, is one of the most modern dorms in the southwest.

Harold Hamilton and Ed Gammill were the industrious counselors who worked with an efficient staff of hard-working officers. The 1949-50 officers were John Hawkins, president; John Cobb, vice-president; Bob Vowen, secretary-historian; Texas Milholland, treasurer; E. O. Sumner, athletic director; and Ed Hemme, social chairman. The coun-

The Gregsonites participated in social, athletic, and academic activities. One of the three dances given was a soft candlelight affair staged in the Hall's own cafeteria. Intramurals command a tremendous amount of interest from the men, and several of the residents are varsity athletes.

HOLCOMBE HALL

Holcombe Hall, the resident hall for freshmen women, was named for Miss Jobelle Holcombe, emeritus professor of English and the first dean of women at the University.

The Harvest Moon Inter-Hall Dance, pajama parties, Open House for the men students, monthly birthday dinners, and weekly faculty dinners were outstanding events on the Fall social calendar. The Valentine party and the Holcombe Hall Spring Dance climaxed the social events of the year. There were also weekly exchange dinners with Carnall and Davis halls which were enjoyed by everyone.

Holcombe residents shared many campus honors this year.

The Hall was awarded second place for Homecoming House Decorations. The "A" and "B" volley ball teams won first place. In the beauty line, Barbara Braun was a Maid to the Homecoming Queen, and Betty Coldren was a finalist for St. Patricia. Among those active in Blackfriars were Dolores Alexander, Barbara Felton, Lynn Carruth, and Sue Redyard. Seven of the girls were in the Razorback Band, and Pat Moore was a drum majorette. Peggy Paty was on the A.W.S. executive committee, and Rita Snoddy was Y.W. C.A. representative.

CARNALL HALL

Gracious, spacious Carnall Hall, led through one of its most successful years by its president, Frances Barton, was home for 114 upper class women students this year.

A tradition was born this year when the girls initiated the first all-campus stag party for girls, given before the A.W.S. vice-versa dance. A faculty tea was held in February. High on the calendar for good times was the annual "come-as-you-are" Christmas party. The traditional Spring Formal climaxed the social season.

The girls of Carnall Hall assumed their share of campus leadership. Frances Barton was elected secretary-treasurer of the senior class, served as a student senator, and as secretary of A.S.A., and was on the A.W.S. Executive Board. Barbara Wood was secretary of the house manager's council, and also served as a student senator. Pat Pierce was society editor of the Traveler, assistant editor of the RAZORBACK, and was on the A.W.S. Executive Board. Ann Peterson was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, and was secretary of I.R.C. Dot LaVoice was secretary of Y.W.C.A., and Peggy Williams served on the Y.W.C.A. Cabinet.

DAVIS HALL

Davis Hall has been well represented in many of the clubs, honorary societies, and religious organizations this year. Donna Swank, president of the Hall, was secretary of the Student Senate, secretary of A.W.S., and a member of Mortar Board. Eva Power was secretary of Pi Mu Delta and a member of Alpha Epsilon Delta. Imogene Bynum was secretary of Phi Upsilon Omicron. Frances Smith was secretary-treasurer of the University Religion Club, and the secretary of the B.S.U. council was Faye Houston. Sarah Mayfield was secretary of the Wesley Players. On the business side, Glee Henderson was secretary of the Marketing Club. Carolyn Rodgers was treasurer of the Home Ec Club.

Taking the beauty spotlight in any crowd was Joanne Campbell, who was chosen a RAZORBACK beauty, and cover girl for the Southern Coach and Athlete magazine.

Jeannine Hartley was the head band majorette of the famous Razorback band that led the Mardi Gras parade.

The Davis Hall girls enjoyed their busy social season highlighted by a skating party, the Harvest Moon Inter-Hall formal, and many other events during the year.

GIRLS' 4-H

The Girl's Four-H House has the distinction of being the first house of its kind organized in the United States, and the first Cooperative House on the campus. It is a member of the Central League of Campus Co-ops, which is an organ of the National Consumer's Cooperative Association.

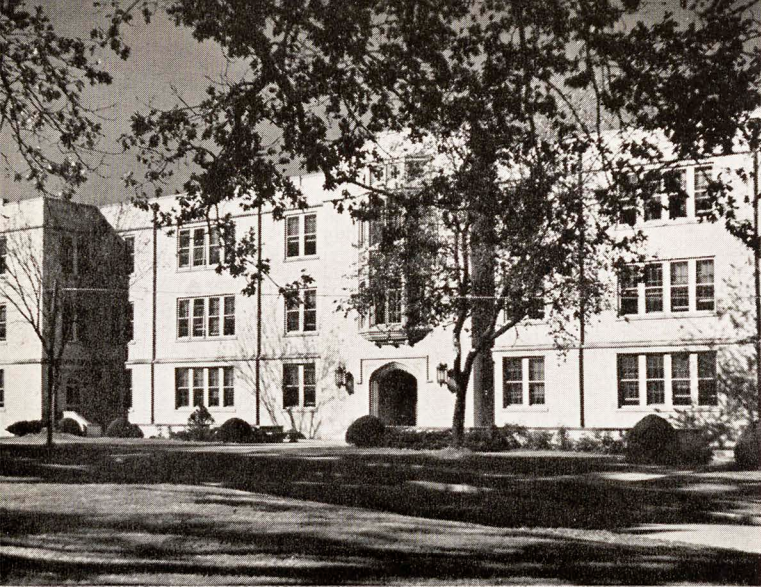

This year's social activities began with the annual backyard buffet supper in honor of the new girls. A skating party, candy making party, sweater hop, and other occasions preceded the Christmas "Holly Day" Banquet, which climaxed the Fall social activities. The Founder's Day Banquet was an outstanding feature of the Spring semester.

There are several Four-H Champions and scholarship winners among the group. Mildred Bruce has won national honors in Home Management; Evelyn Sekavec is National Clothing Champion, State Achievement Champion, and winner of a Danforth Award; Jerry Waddill placed second in State Home Improvement Contests for two years; Marian Measeles and Pat Falls are winners of Kroger Scholarships; Geneva Smith has been state champion in gardening for two years and National Champion for one year; and Pat Brewer was state winner in clothing.

RAZORBACK HALL

The high-point of the year at Razorback Hall was the arrival of the long-awaited new furniture which came right after the Christmas Holidays. The new beds with inner spring mattresses were a great improvement over the old army bunks, and the individual desks were just what was needed for those who studied. Cushioned chairs and bed tables were other additions which made the men's comfort more complete. Another improvement was the return of the plan for only two men to live in a room. For the last three years the men have been living three in a room.

Alvin Duke was again elected president of the Hall, and handled all of the business and activities with his usual efficiency and tact.

This year, the athletes were divided up somewhat. They lived in all sections of the Hall, and some were moved to Gregson Hall. Nevertheless, Razorback Hall was still considered the official home of the Razorbacks.

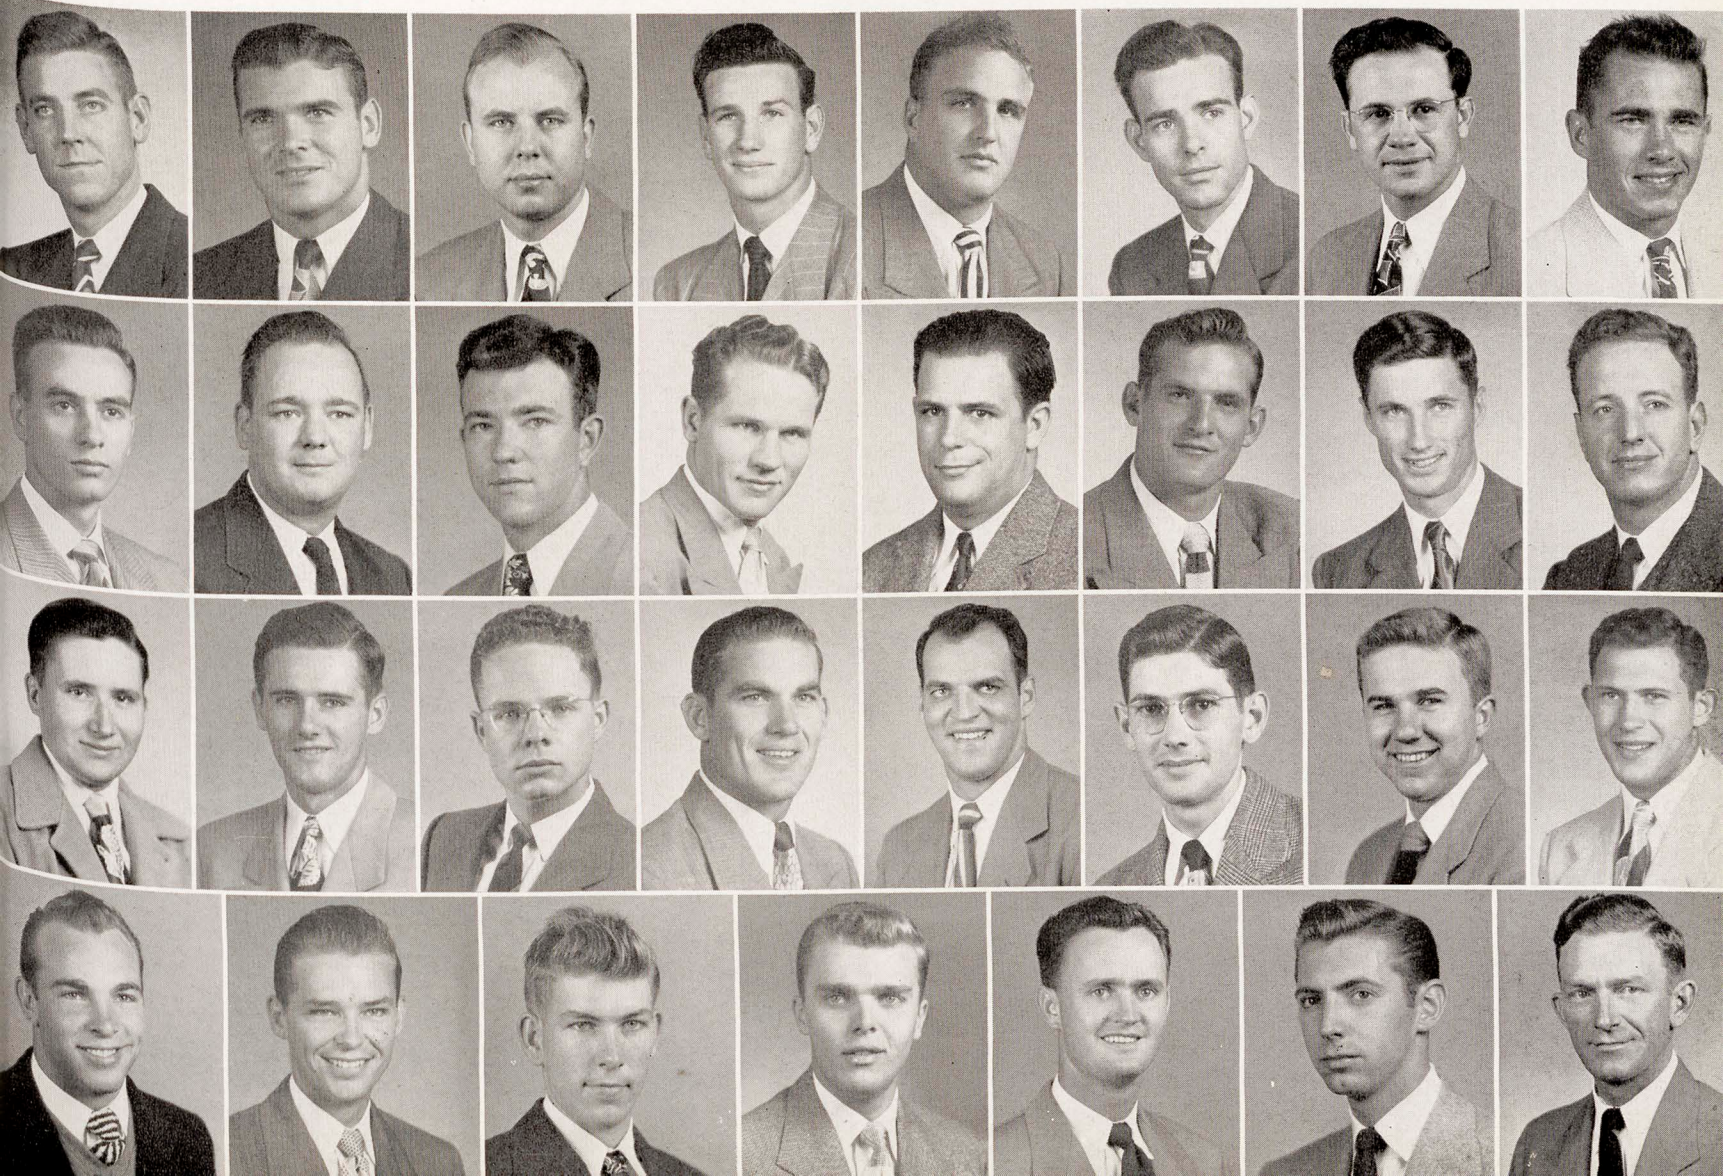

Informality was the keynote of the outstanding event of the Razorback social season, which was the annual spring outing. It was held after the spring football practice.

LLOYD HALLS

Lloyd Halls are dormitories purchased from the government at the close of the war and placed in the University housing program as housing for approximately two hundred seventy-five men. These six dormitories have been in use since the Fall of 1946. Due to the provisions in the contract, this is probably the last year that Lloyd Halls will be in operation as a residence for men students at the University of Arkansas.

The name Lloyd Halls is derived from that of a Fayetteville man who was killed in World War II.

Governing bodies are maintained in each of the halls, and

George Niblock is president this year. Counselors are placed in each hall by the University, with the responsibility of advising the men, maintaining order, and acting as general

O. I. W.

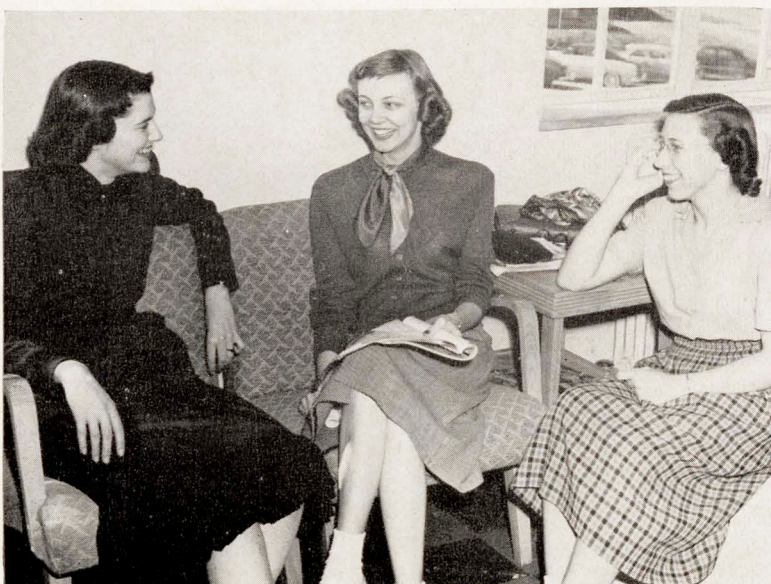

Organized Independent Women was founded on the University of Arkansas campus for the benefit of town girls. The membership is composed of girls from Fayetteville who are not affiliated with any organized house on the campus.

OIW is well represented in the officialdom of campus honorary organizations. Nelle Curry is secretary of Mortar Board; Nan Dill is treasurer, and Anna Mary Ferguson is secretary of Sigma Alpha Iota. Louise Davis Williams is a member of Phi Upsilon Omicron. In Coterie, Rita Cook is president, Nelle Curry is vice-president, and Jean Coddington is treasurer. Alice Aumick is one of the drum major-ettes for the famous Razorback band.

Ingeborg Von Groll, an exchange student from Berlin, Germany is an honorary member of OIW.

This year was a very successful one from the social standpoint, too. The annual bar-b-q, the first party of the fall semester, was great fun, although it had to be held indoors because of rain. A dessert party was held before the Vice-Versa dance at Christmas. The spring semester was highlighted by a Valentine Dance, picnic, and sock hop.

U-ARK ANNEX

Its convenient location and the friendship present are two things which make the U-Ark Annex very popular with all the young men who live there. It is situated a short distance from the edge of the campus and only a few steps from all of the favorite spots located in Schuler Town. Its neighbors include a bowling alley, a theater, a coffee shop, a grill, a record shop, and a church. George's is also within the block.

Any new freshman will be surprised at how friendly every one is. He can always find someone who will help him with anything from psychology and philosophy to trouble with the opposite sex and homesickness.

This year the Annex was best known for its all night study and bull sessions. Bull sessions were prevalent. During finals many lights burned all night and trips to Creighton's were made on the hour and half hour. Everyone will be a long time forgetting the night Mom forgot to turn on the heat. That happened the week Fayetteville was isolated from the rest of the state by ice and snow. All in all, this has been a great year for the U-Ark Annex boys.

The U-Ark Annex (right) is located at 626 West Dickson. The building was completely remodeled in September, 1948. It is the home of thirty-three Arkansas students.

DELTA GAMMA

Fun, parties, and happiness constitute the atmosphere of the buff brick house at the end of sorority row where the Delta Gammas live.

The social whirl began with the pledges giving an open house for all other sorority pledges on the campus. Next came the faculty tea and an open house for the football boys. The largest social function of the fall semester in the DG House was the Christmas dinner party. Gordon Grayson played Saint Nick and distributed toys to all the dates.

Jerry Lee Reynolds was selected as a maid to Miss Arkansas for the Arkansas-Texas game in Little Rock. Bev

Jones was named Homecoming Queen to reign over the U. of A. annual Homecoming celebration, with Dorothy Wood as one of her maids. Mary Bob Cross was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, tapped for Mortar Board, and won the Tri-Delt Scholarship. Frances Shouse was tapped for Mortar Board and elected its president. Carol Sittler served as secretary of Alpha Lambda Delta. Elouise Carroum and Bev Jones were selected as R.O.T.C. sponsors. Bev was also selected as one of the finalists in the National Maid of Cotton Contest in Memphis.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA

Gamma Nu chapter of Kappa Kappa Gamma has taken many top honors in scholarship and campus activities. Some of those honored were: Flossie Meeks, president of the Met Club, vice-president of Y.W.C.A., Mortar Board, and on the S.U. Board; Mary Louise Ingram, outstanding senior girl in the school of business administration last spring, and member of Beta Gamma Sigma; Virginia Hicks, Phi Beta Kappa; Martha Williams, Alpha Lambda Delta, and secretary of the A.W.S. judicial board; Nell Parker, president of the Major-Minor club and treasurer of W.A.A.; Gretta Dameron, secretary of the S.U. planning board.

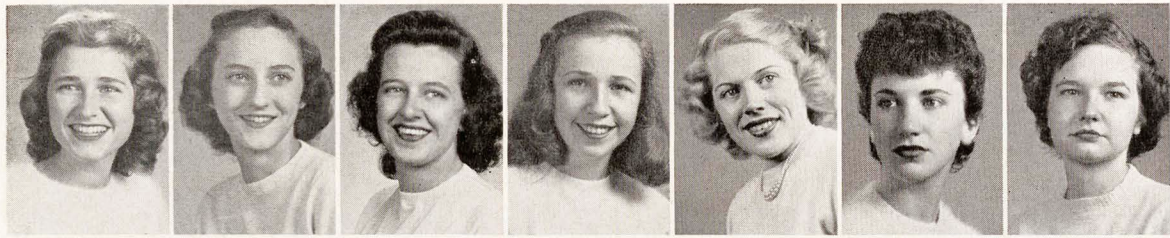

Football season brought a special thrill when Joan McKnight was elected a Homecoming maid and Mary Emrich served as maid to Miss Arkansas at the Texas game. Rosie Davidson was chosen KA sweetheart. Patty Godwin was elected an R.O.T.C. sponsor. Maisie Lackey was selected as a University of Arkansas contestant for the Maid of Cotton Contest.

Socially active as well, Kappa entertained with a sweater hop to introduce the new pledges, a Christmas tree party, chapter banquets, Homecoming parties, after date parties, and the annual spring formal.

ZETA TAU ALPHA

The traditional Zeta friendliness was in full swing when Zeta's Holiday Hop, honoring the new pledges, started the season's social whirl. A tea was given in October in honor of Mrs. Charles N. Sloan, Zeta's new housemother. An open house for the football players and Zeta's fifty-first anniversary banquet climaxed the social calendar for October. Two candlelight dinners were held for the Zetas and their dates before the semester closed, and the annual, colorful Mardi Gras Ball began the new term.

Zeta won honors in scholarship as well as in campus activities. Some of these were: Georgia Mills, president of Lambda Tau and member of Phi Alpha Theta; Mary John Skillern, Bobbe Larson, and Pat Rogers on the A.W.S. Executive Board; Jean Ann Kight, tapped by Mortar Board; Virginia Reeves, Bobbe Larson, and Johnnie Wallace, initiated into Chi Theta; Ruth Moss, S.A.I. pledge; Mary Ann Ellis, co-chairman of the Student Union Publicity Committee; and Janie Sullivan, assistant editor of the RAZORBACK.

Pan-Hellenic Council Co-op. Among Sororities

Today on every campus where there are two or more National Pan-Hellenic Fraternity chapters, a local Pan-Hellenic must be established to carry out the Purposes, Creed, Standards of Ethical Conduct, and the Pan-Hellenic Compact. Rules and regulations for rushing and other matters that pertain to all the groups alike are discussed at the bi-monthly meetings. Each spring the organization holds a retreat attended by four representatives from each sorority. Pledge training, scholarship, and other pertinent topics are discussed at this time.

This year Pan-Hellenic sponsored a sweater hop which was held in the Union, for sorority members and their dates.

The Pan-Hellenic Council is an organization made up of the presidents of all the sororities and of one member elected from each sorority house. It tries to work through the spirit of cooperation, rather than competition. There will always be rivalries among groups, but the activities of the organizations have done much to bring out the true worth of each sorority, and to relieve the tensions that tend to arise when organizations compete with each other.

Inter-Fraternity Council Unity for Fraternities

The purpose of the Inter-Fraternity Council is to aid the Greek letter organizations on the campus, to mediate any differences which may arise between them, and to promote the best interests of the University of Arkansas. The Council strives to help in the cementing of relations between the University and the social fraternities.

The membership in this Council is limited to two representatives from each of the social fraternities on the campus. The meetings are held twice each month for the purpose of discussing problems and forming policies. Each year the Inter-Fraternity Council formulates the rules for the Spring and Fall fraternity rush. These rules encourage uniform rush policies and cooperation among the group.

This year the Farm House Club was granted a non-voting seat on the Inter-Fraternity Council.

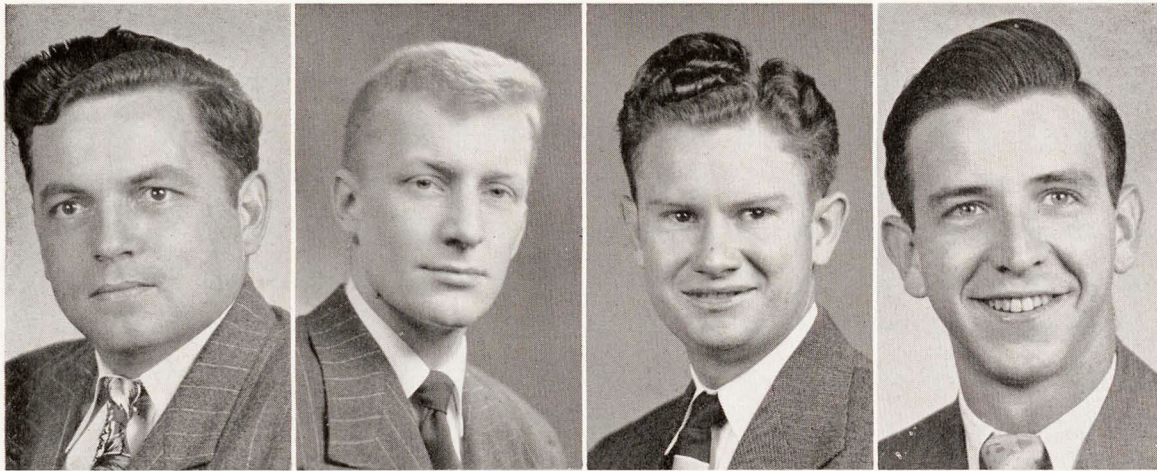

One of the primary duties of the officers of the Council is to work in close cooperation with the Dean of Men and all other administrative personnel in social and business matters concerning the relationship of the fraternities with the University of Arkansas.

ACACIA

Acacia has made steady and lasting progress since first colonizing on the University of Arkansas campus in December, 1948. The past year has seen the first Black and Gold formal and the entrance of Acacia into intramural athletics. The men of the fraternity are also proud of their contributions to the two campus-wide festivities, Homecoming and Gaebale.

The fraternity was founded at the University of Michigan in 1904, by a group of Master Masons. Because of the close associations with Masonry, the name Acacia, a Masonic symbol, was chosen for the fraternity instead of a combination of Greek letters. The requirements for membership were amended in 1933 and the fraternity now admits sons of Masons and those men recommended by two Masons. The Masonic background and affiliation have had and still have a salutary effect upon the organization. Acacia, which is a charter member of the National Interfraternity Council, now has thirty-four active chapters distributed over the United States, chiefly in the larger universities.

Prior to chartering, the Arkansas colony had one undergraduate member and seven faculty alumni on the campus.

ALPHA GAMMA RHO

Essentially an agricultural fraternity, Alpha Gamma Rho was founded at the University of Illinois in 1908.

Alpha Iota chapter is proud of its scholarship record. At least three different institutions have contributed scholarships or awards to its members: Fred Ligon was the Danforth winner; the Esso winners were A. D. Stanley, Jake Phillips, and Buddy Weems; and Bill Hestir was the Kroger winner.

A large number of AGR's have been initiated into some of the honorary fraternities on the campus. Perry Adkisson, Fred Ligon, Bill Ferguson, Don Brown, Gene Warren and Bill Phillips are all members of Alpha Zeta. Omicron Delta Kappa has initiated Don Brown, Fred Ligon, David James, Bill Phillips, and Don Huenefeld. Perry Adkisson and Bill Ferguson belong to Phi Sigma. Rudy Bauer is an Alpha Kappa Psi and Gene Warren is a Kappa Kappa Psi.

The group is very active in most of the campus activities and has several members on the Agriculturist staff.

Rooster Day was an outstanding success this year and has become an annual tradition to the AGR's and to all Agri students.

KAPPA ALPHA

The Kappa Alpha order was founded in 1865, at Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Virginia. Inspired by Robert E. Lee, who at that time was president of the school, the founders tried to instill the Southern ideals and traditions into their fraternity members, and the customs have continued throughout the years.

Established at the University of Arkansas in 1895, Alpha Omicron chapter of the all-Southern fraternity is one of the oldest groups on the campus. Under the guidance of an excellent group of officers, this year has been a very successful one for the KA's.

The members of Kappa Alpha greeted campus social life in the Fall with their annual Pigalle costume party, which introduced Parisian culture into the KA house. The Con-

KAPPA SIGMA

The home of the men who wear the crescent and the star is the largest fraternity house in the world. This year, the Kappa Sigs had a very successful social season that included such events as the Poverty Party, pledge dinner dances, and the Spring Formal, and a reception for the freshman girls. The greatest event of the season was the Christmas formal, followed by a breakfast at the chapter house.

Kappa Sig has many members who are campus leaders. Maitland Rutledge was selected as the outstanding business student in the state this year. He is also President of the Inter-fraternity Council and Business Manager of the RAZORBACK. Ed Dillon is Case Note Editor of the Law Review, Associate Justice of the Student Court, and a member

In compliance with a national expansion program, Gamma Chi Zeta chapter of Lambda Chi Alpha completed arrangements this year to build a new fraternity house. The house will be located on fraternity row, and will be one of the most beautiful buildings on the campus. It is hoped that it will be completed and ready for occupancy by next Fall.

The Lambda Chis can look back on a year full of outstanding achievements in every phase of campus life. A number of members held campus offices this year. Bill Block, the chapter president, was president of Alpha Kappa Psi. John Marlowe and Walter Williams were elected to the Student Senate last Spring. Ed Hemme and Bill Goodwin were elected to the Commerce Guild. Bill Blair was elected chairman of

PHI DELTA THETA

Completing the Fall social activities, which included a hay-ride, smokers, and dinner parties, Phi Delta Theta celebrated the end of its first year at Arkansas with a birthday banquet and party November 19. The national fraternity was 101 years old, and Arkansas Alpha was the centennial chapter.

The Phi Delts had reason to celebrate. In one year they had accomplished a great deal in establishing a new fraternity on the campus. Plans were nearing completion for building a new annex to their buff brick house on Storer Street in 1950, they had won the intramural bowling trophy for the 1948-49 season, and while they did not win intramural football, they went into the semi-finals against some tough opposition. The garage in back of the house had been miraculously converted into a game room with snack bar and all that goes with it. The Phi Delts were justly proud of their year.

The future also looked bright. With the spring formal and the new Phi Delt Dream Girl, plus the annual Founders' Day banquet, the spring semester was eagerly awaited by a group of Phis determined to make Phi Delta Theta's second year at Arkansas even greater than the first.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

Alpha Zeta Chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha, established at the University of Arkansas, was the first chapter west of the Mississippi. The present group considers the year just completed to be one of its most successful ones.

The social calendar featured a large variety of parties and dances, of which the annual Dream Girl formal was the most outstanding. The PiKA's also celebrated Homecoming in fine style, and are proud of having won first prize for the best fraternity float in the parade.

One of the most outstanding boys wearing the Garnet and Gold on the campus this year was Geno Mazzanti.

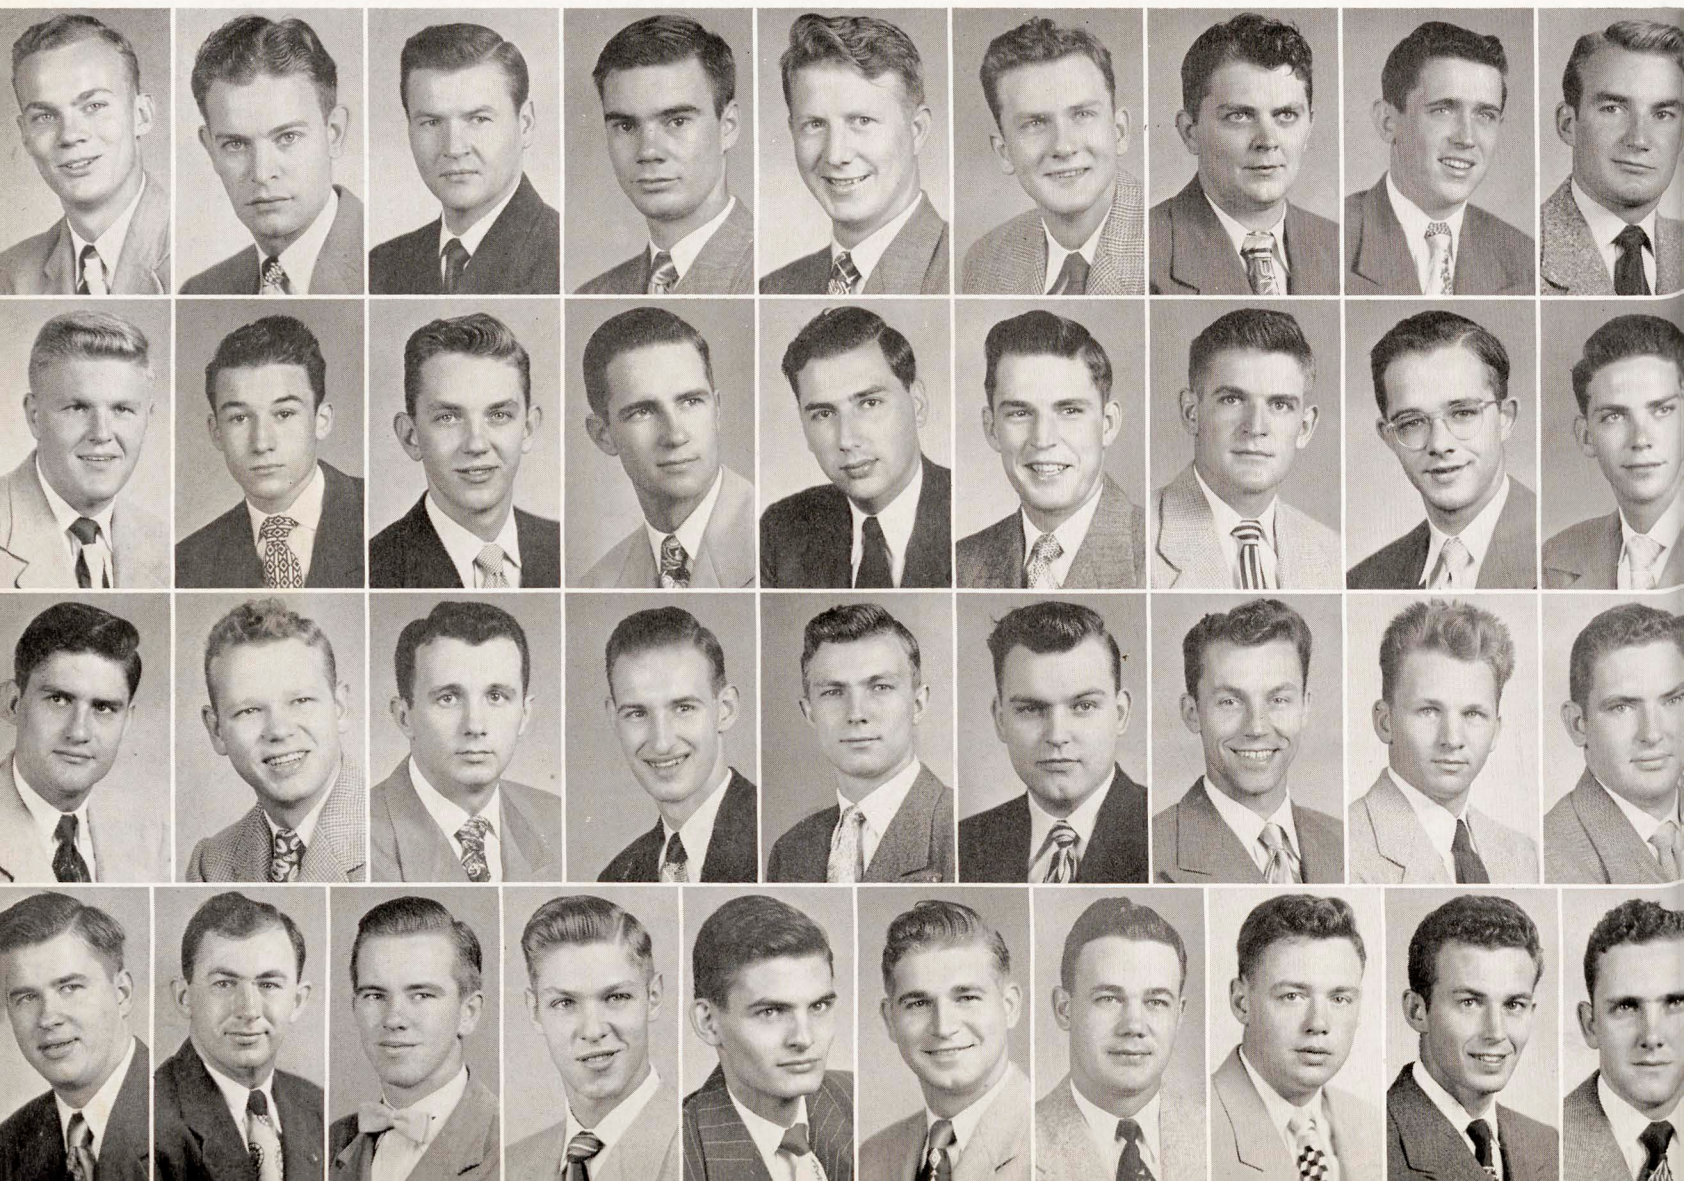

"Junior," as he is known to all, placed second in total number of yards gained by a football player in the Southwest Conference and was elected "King Porker" by his teammates.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

The residents of Sig Alph Hill have had a fortunate supply of campus leaders this year. Frank McGehee served as president of the Commerce Guild, and Ferd Bellingrath was the editor of the Guild Ticker. Bob Dougherty was elected vice-president of the student body. Charles Kittrell was this year's majority leader of the student senate, and served as chairman of the entertainment committee.

Bill Pollard has achieved a remarkable record for his two years as pledge trainer. This year he was commended by National, and was requested to attend the national convention to teach pledge training classes.

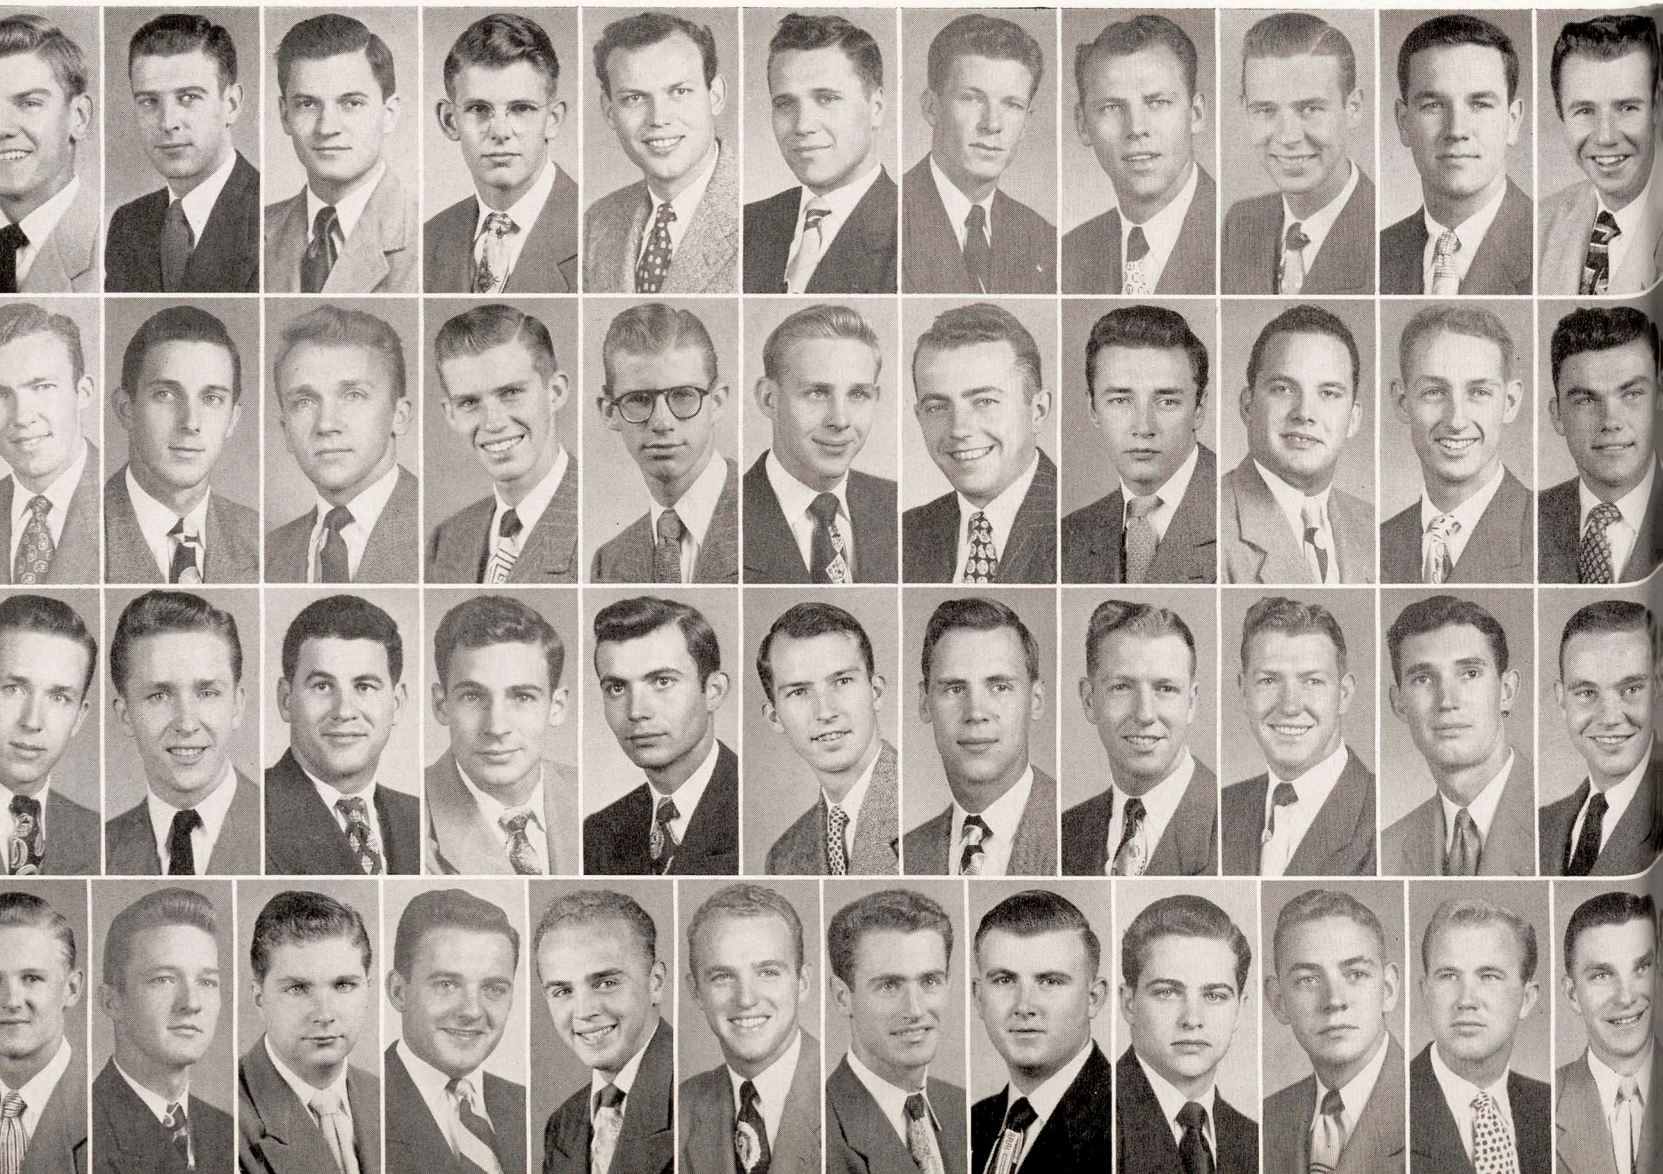

Under athletic director Dick Gillham, Sig Alph is making a strong bid to win and retain the Sweepstakes Trophy, which was awarded to them last Spring.

SIGMA PI

This has been the Alpha Sigma chapter's fourth year on the University of Arkansas campus, and great strides have been made since its organization. Membership has grown to an average of sixty-five members from a nucleus of thirteen charter members. Sigma Pi ranks high scholastically and has assisted in every way possible in making the University of Arkansas a greater institution.

Sigma Pi was privileged to have as their guest this year Roger Meindre of Lyons, France, the first male foreign exchange student to attend the University. The members feel it was a good experience and that through this sort of relationship international problems may be overcome. They think that Roger now has a better understanding of America and they of France.

Numerous social functions were enjoyed by the Sigma PIs this year. These included a Christmas dance, a Spanish Fiesta dance, the traditional Orchid Ball, and individual drop-in parties for the sororities on campus. There was also the annual Founder's Day celebration, which was attended by members from chapters in Arkansas, Missouri, and Kansas.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

Beginning the second year of activities since its reactivation in 1948, Sig Ep was off to an auspicious start in its new home at 213 N. Church Street. Continuing in the traditions which began in 1901 with the founding of Sigma Phi Epsilon, Arkansas Alpha chapter has maintained an outstanding record in all campus activities.

Social activities of the year included a party for new initiates, a Homecoming open house and dance, the Golden Heart formal, a hayride to Lake Wedington.

Particularly outstanding in athletics is Edward "Hoot" Kinsey, who was elected Mr. Arkansas for the second consecutive year, and was chosen to compete in the Mr. Southern States contest.

Scholarship is the aim of every Sig Ep, both for the individual and for the chapter. Among the honorary organizations represented are Kappa Kappa Psi, A.B.C., Pershing Rifles, A.I.E.E., ODK, Phi Eta Sigma, Branner Geology Club, Lambda Tau, Pi Mu Epsilon, Delta Theta Phi, Blackfriars, Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, Sigma Gamma Epsilon, ASME, and AIChE, proving that Sig Ep is an organization of varied interests.

THETA TAU

Theta Tau is a national professional engineering fraternity, and has the two-fold purpose of developing and maintaining a high standard of professional interest among its members and uniting them in a strong bond of fraternal fellowship.

The chapter maintains the highest fraternity-sorority grade-point average on the campus, but studies do not interfere with a well-rounded social program. The school year was highlighted by smokers, listening parties, the annual spring picnic, the Founders' Day banquet, and the spring formal.

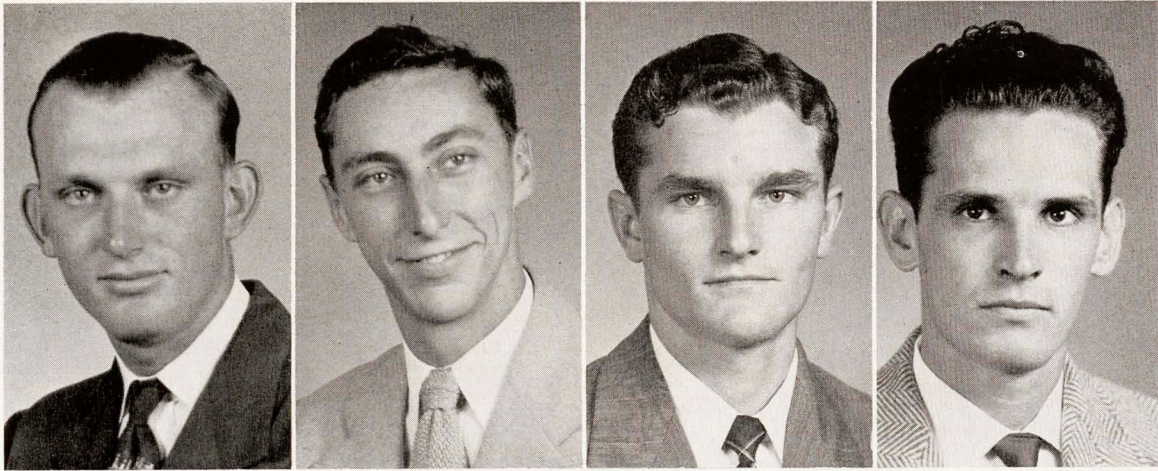

Last year the fraternity resumed the awarding of its annual Theta Tau award, which is given to the outstanding senior in the College of Engineering each year.

As always, Theta Tau has many campus leaders. Some of these are: Bob Bowen, President of Sigma Chi and Tau Beta Pi; John Sanders, President of Delta Sigma Phi and YMCA; Ed Gammill, President of the Engineering Council; Omer North, President of Phi Eta Sigma; John Hawkins, President of Gregson Hall; Bruce Estes, President of Pi Mu Epsilon; and Roy Harrison, Editor, and Leroy Brooks, business manager of the Arkansas Engineer.

DELTA SIGMA PHI

Delta Sigma Phi, a fraternity of international scope and activity, was one of the original members of the Inter-fraternity Council. The object of the organization is to form an enjoyable and lasting brotherhood among college men of good moral character and to provide an atmosphere of mutual helpfulness for the members. The Gamma Beta chapter of Delta Sigma Phi can be justly proud of its first year at the University of Arkansas. The fraternity was installed on March 6, 1949, by the national officers and by members of the Lambda chapter from Southern Methodist University. The group has been functioning on the University of Arkansas campus as a colony of the national fraternity since November, 1946.

Gamma Beta chapter has entered intramurals and has participated in Homecoming and other University activities. During the year the fraternity has held several social functions in its chapter house on Storer Street, among which was the first Sailors Ball, which will become an annual affair. The Carnation Ball was inaugurated in the Student Union Ballroom on March 14, and Founders' Day was observed at a banquet attended by members and guests on December 10.

ZETA BETA TAU

This year a charter was granted by the national Zeta Beta Tau fraternity to Beta Tau on the University of Arkansas campus. Beta Tau had been a colony of Zeta Beta Tau here since February, 1947. Zeta Beta Tau was founded by a group of college men in New York City in 1898, and is the oldest and largest social fraternity for Jewish men. The fraternity has forty-nine chapters and forty-three alumni clubs in the United States and Canada.

Charter members who were initiated into the national fraternity were: Adrian Becker, New York City; Charles H. Blustein, Little Rock; Morton W. Gladstein, Pine Bluff; Alan H. Hirsch, Marvell; Alfred J. Levin, Joplin, Mo.; Shepherd Stigman, Howard Weinstein, and Ernest M. Weitz, all of New York City.

Gerald Bogoslavsky, Fort Smith; Milton Caplan, Pine Bluff; and Edwin H. Pollock, New York, comprised the pledge class.

Members of Zeta Beta Tau who graduated last year and who were also initiated as charter members included: Donald Cohen, Fort Smith; Burton M. Feinsmith, New York; Edmund M. Hirsch, Jr., Marvell; and Charles S. Rubin, New York City.

S. Irving Saphirstein and Herbert H. Wolf, who were members of Zeta Beta Tau before coming to the University, were also initiated as charter members.

Highlighting the social events of the year were the Cinderella Ball and the annual Zeta Beta Tau Bar-B-Q. The fraternity was not to be outdone in campus decorations, either, for it was awarded first place in the 1949 Gaebale booth construction, and honorable mention for its Homecoming house decorations. Zeta Beta Tau is also proud of achieving second place honors in scholarship.

Although small in number, Zeta Beta Tau is large in activity. The members of the fraternity are active in many Greek letter honorary societies, such as Alpha Phi Omega, Alpha Epsilon Delta, Phi Sigma, and Psi Chi.

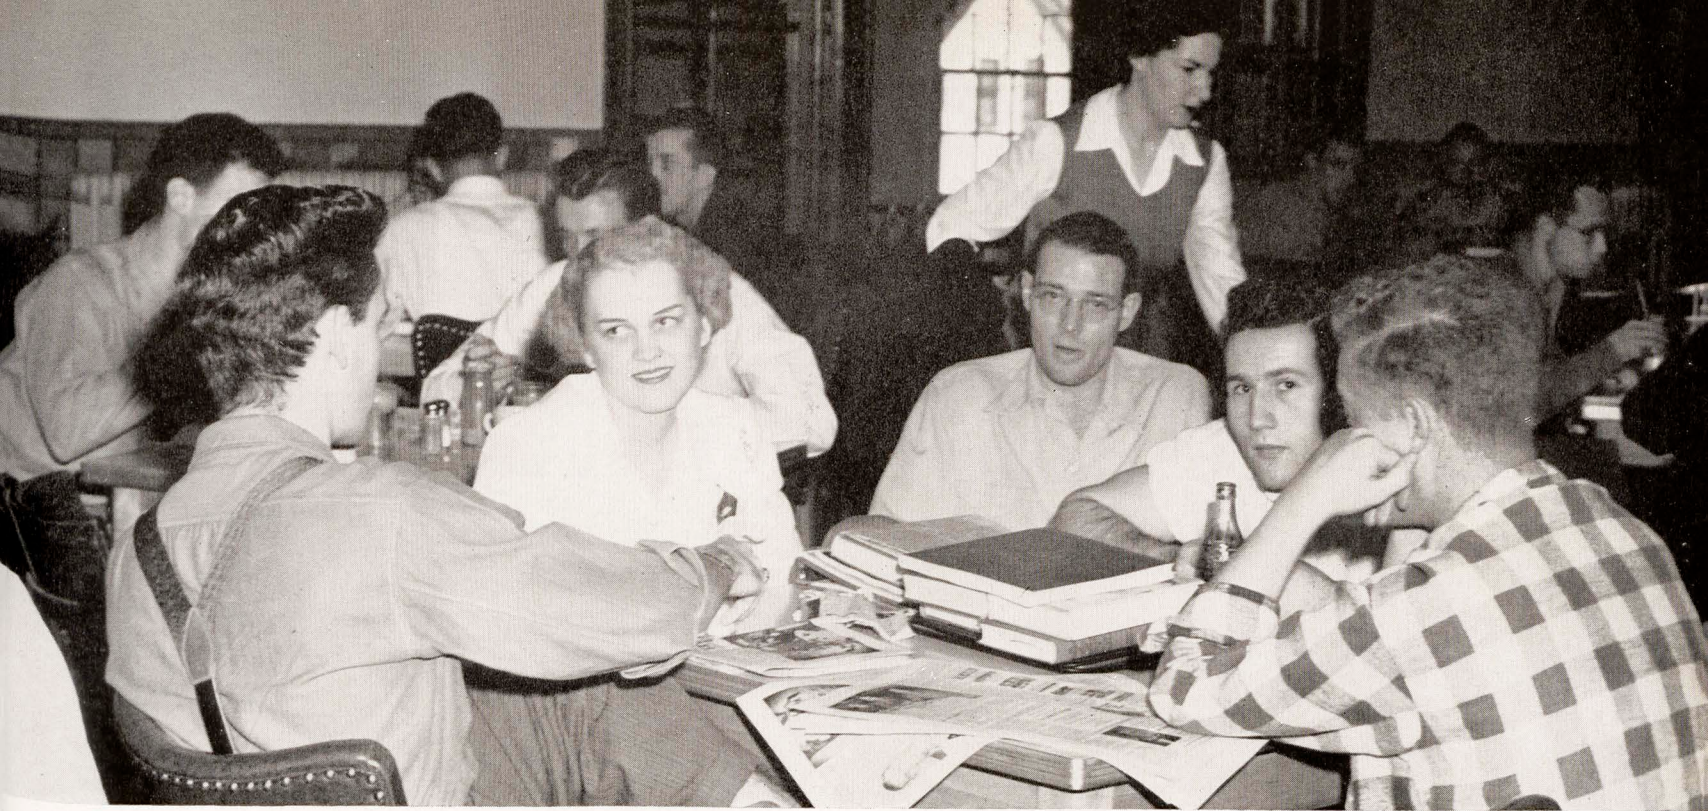

Professor S. C. Dellinger, head of the zoology department, was the faculty advisor of the group.

The Zeta Beta Tau's can look back on the past year's activities with many happy remembrances and the feeling that it was a job well done.

We feel our responsibility to the parents of Arkansas and the young men and women that make the University of Arkansas.

So to better serve the people of Arkansas, Fayetteville now boasts two of the finest, most complete Drug Stores to be found.

These Drug Stores have more different brands of the top merchandise in the drug field; more experienced and accommodating personnel and more conveniences. One store on the square and one store in the center of town where patrons may park free any time.

See the electronic automatic opening doors at the Dickson Street store.
